

Comedy common commodity for Hope

BY MARY LOU VOSSMEYER
Democrat-Capitol Staff Writer

After a 20-minute delay Thursday, the great white Hope of American comedians entered a Ramada Inn banquet room for a press conference before his grandstand performance at the Missouri State Fair.

Bob Hope strolled to the front of the room smiling and humming to himself. Amid photographers' flashes and glaring TV camera lights, the king of comedy seemed to exude an air of tranquility and congeniality.

When Hope was asked why he decided to appear at the Missouri State Fair, he answered curtly: "Money," but quickly added that he has played several fairs and many colleges.

"I do make a lot of personal appearances," he said. "It's something I enjoy doing...I enjoy contact with live audiences."

Hope expressed his opinion on Henry Kissinger's appointment to Secretary of State by saying "Well, he's had enough practice...actually, F.D.R. had a guy named Harry Hopkins who used to do that kind of stuff off the cuff and it worked pretty well for him."

One reporter asked Hope if he supported the recent meat boycott.

"I'm one of the cattle rustlers," he replied.

He added that he really is concerned about the problem of cattle rustling and said he felt the meat boycott "didn't hurt because it brings our problems to light."

Hope told reporters that when the Vietnam war began he was called a Hawk, along with a lot of other brilliant men. He added that as the war dragged on "I became more of an owl."

Hope also said that if the war had been handled in the right manner "we would have been out eight years ago and saved some half million lives...but I don't know who else could have ended the war besides the administration."

Regarding his reputation as a Hawk, Hope mentioned that one young man in a San Francisco

Astronauts perform maintenance chores

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two Skylab 2 astronauts stepped outside their orbiting space station today to change solar telescope film and install a new "six pack" of gyroscopes to keep their ship on an even keel.

Bundled in bulky spacesuits attached to 60-foot lifelines, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma exited the laboratory at 12:24 p.m. EDT, 270 miles above the South Atlantic Ocean.

"Hatch is open and I'm on my way out," Lousma reported. "Oh, boy, there's the world."

SkyLab 2's commander, Alan L. Bean, remained inside, ready to control the spacecraft on the remote chance something went wrong during the gyroscope installation. The gyroscopes keep the vehicle from tumbling out of control.

Just before the pair went out, capsule communicator Bruce McCandless told them jokingly: "On the way out don't forget to turn off the lights and air conditioning and to close the door."

Lousma, a muscular Marine major, moved first into the harsh vacuum of space to hook up the 23-foot-long gyroscope cable at four connector points. Garriott, a solar physicist, stood near the open hatch to feed the cable to him.

"I can do the job with no problem," Lousma reported.

Later during the scheduled four-hour excursion, Garriott was to mount a ladder to change film in eight solar telescopes which the astronauts use to observe and photograph the sun.

Because of the orbital path of the space station today, they were to be out of radio contact for long periods during the walk, sometimes more than an hour.

"It's pretty much your show up there with the station activity today," McCandless told them.

During a 15-minute period when neither the old nor the new gyros were to operate, officials expected the station to drift slightly in orientation. If the drift in roll, pitch or yaw should be more than expected, Bean was to maintain stability with the controls of the Apollo ferry ship docked at one end of the laboratory.

The space walk originally was planned only to change film in the battery of telescopes through which the astronauts observe and photograph the sun.

But during the Skylab 1 mission, the original set of gyroscopes became overheated and some started to deteriorate. So Bean, Garriott and Lousma brought up with them six replacement gyros in a container they have nicknamed a "gyro six pack."

Agnew defends Anderson

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dale Anderson, a Democrat who succeeded Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as chief executive of Baltimore County, has been charged with extortion and bribery in a kickback scheme involving architects and engineers.

The indictment by a federal grand jury Thursday was the first in a far-reaching investigation of political corruption in Maryland. The grand jury, empaneled in December, is expected to begin probing soon allegations of similar illegal payments to Agnew.

Agnew has branded as "damned lies" reports that he received such kickbacks.

And an hour after Anderson's indictment was announced Agnew responded he found the charges "totally at variance with my impressions of him and everything I know about him."

"Despite our political differences, in all my associations with Mr. Anderson, both official and private, he has exhibited unusual candor and integrity," the vice president added.

The 56-year-old Anderson said he was innocent of accusations that he extorted $46,420 from eight firms doing business with the county.

Gov. Marvin Mandel, a Democrat who followed Agnew into the state house in Annapolis, said he wouldn't comment until Anderson "has had his day in court."

The boss of the sprawling Baltimore city-suburb and one of the most powerful Democrats in Maryland, Anderson was the sole defendant in the 39-count indictment. A former aide was named co-conspirator and four other men—two of them long-time Agnew associates—were cited as participants in the conspiracy that allegedly began in November 1968. At the time Agnew was the county's chief elected official.

U.S. Attorney George Beall, who heads the probe, said "further indictments can be expected."

He added that "the investigation of Mr. Anderson, other public officials and business entities and individuals in Baltimore County is continuing."

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge ruled Friday that most of the nation's retail gasoline dealers can raise their prices starting Sept. 1.

The Justice Department and the Cost of Living Council said the decision would be appealed immediately.

U.S. District Court Judge Barrington D. Parker issued the ruling in a suit brought against the council on behalf of 165,000 service station dealers selling retail gasoline under the brand names of major gasoline suppliers.

The decision, if it withstands the governmental appeals, would effectively lift controls for the retail gasoline dealers. Between now and midnight next Friday, Aug. 31, prices remain frozen.

Fair approaching its final weekend

Skydivers and racing coon dogs were in the spotlight Friday as the Missouri State Fair approached its final weekend.

Attendance figures for Thursday revealed that, after a two-day lag in ticket sales, 24,061 persons purchased tickets, an increase of 4,429 over the paid attendance figure for Thursday a year ago. These figures do not include season ticket holders or children under age six who were admitted free of charge. In past Fairs, a formula adding 5,000 to daily attendance, plus a 15 per cent estimate for children under six, was used to determine attendance each day. This practice is not being used now.

No doubt serving to draw the increased numbers was the presence Thursday night of comedian Bob Hope, who entertained a capacity crowd in the evening grandstand show. It was the second day in a row that people had to be turned away because the grandstand was full.

Other attractions capturing audience interest Thursday included mule, cattle and swine judging competition and draft horse pulling contests.

Hazel D. Davis, Elsberry, won a Hereford heifer in a raffle sponsored by the Missouri Junior Hereford Association. "Lady Aston 39" was donated to the raffle by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Robbins, Hopkins.

Kelly and Julie Kisse, Springfield, showed the grand and reserve champion Hereford females Thursday, while a two-year-old bull from the B Bar S Ranch, Pella, Iowa, became grand champion Hereford bull.

In other Thursday results the team of Conklin and Frazer, Columbia, won a total of seven awards at the mules-in-hand competition. The two men claimed both the grand champion mule and the reserve champion honors. Other awards included best mule colt, and best one-year-old male mule.

W. C. Read, Pleasanton, Kan., showed top entries in four divisions of the mule competition. Raymond Williams, El Dorado Springs, won the only other divisions with the best pair of mules.

The winning team of draft horses in the sled pulling contest Thursday belonged to Harold Gilbert, Shelby, who collected a $200 prize for his efforts. Other winning entries included Red Peterson, Bonie, Ill., Charles McPheeters, Lee's Summit, and Nevins Biggs, Ashland. Entries in the sled pulling contest represented Missouri, Kansas, Illinois and Indiana.

The grand champion barrow shown Wednesday at the swine exhibition belonged to 10-year-old Scott Sloan, Cameron, who owns only one sow. Scott's mother, Mrs. Jewell Sloan, said "we never expected to do it, this is only our second year raising pigs."

Other honors in the swine competition went to David Shelby, Maryville, who took reserve honors in the barrow show as well as winning both grand and reserve championships of the junior barrow show.

Mike Rorkner, 13, Richards, Mo., showed the reserve champion 4-H barrow while Stephanie Carver, 10, Bowling Green, took the blue ribbon for her 4-H grand champion spot boar and gilt. The grand champion Chester White boar was

Letter bomb explodes

LONDON (AP) — A letter bomb exploded on the 22nd floor of the London Stock Exchange today, wounding the secretary-general of the exchange and his private secretary.

They were the first casualties in the six-day wave of letter and incendiary bombs plaguing the British capital. Scotland Yard believes the bombers are terrorists from Northern Ireland and probably members of the Irish Republican Army.

The secretary-general of the stock exchange, 61-year-old George W. R. Brind, sustained minor hand wounds in the explosion. His 26-year-old secretary, Joanna Knight, who opened the booby-trapped letter, had serious hand injuries and minor facial and leg wounds.

Brind was sitting at his desk opposite Miss Knight when she opened the envelope addressed to George Loveday, the chairman of the stock exchange.

The package bomb exploded in the office of the Stock Exchange Council, the market's governing body. Trading in the trading hall on the ground floor of the 26-story building was not interrupted.

Ten letter bombs were received earlier this week by various government offices and organizations in London, and 15 small incendiary devices have been planted in leading department stores, causing slight damage.

Scotland Yard reported that one of the letter bombs was delivered to Prime Minister Edward Heath's office-residence and lay partially open in a mail tray for hours before a secretary realized its lethal contents.

Detectives revealed that the booby-trapped paperback book was delivered to No. 10 Downing St. on Tuesday in the first batch of letter bombs sent to government offices and various organizations in London this week. The fact that No. 10 had been one of the targets was kept secret for 48 hours.

The bomb consisted of about four ounces of plastic explosives packed in a book about Gustav Mahler, one of the music-loving prime minister's favorite composers.

Kissinger pledges open foreign policy

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger says he and President Nixon will do their best to conduct foreign policy in an open manner if he is confirmed as secretary of state.

He told a news conference Thursday that he would be more accessible to Congress and would testify as frequently as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee desires.

He said President Nixon wanted it understood that executive privilege would be invoked only with respect to personal conversations or direct advice Kissinger gives to Nixon.

The President announced at a news conference Wednesday that Secretary of State William P. Rogers is resigning. Nixon said he was nominating Kissinger as Rogers' successor. Kissinger has been Nixon's national security adviser, a post he will continue to hold.

Kissinger told reporters: "The purpose of combining the two positions is, as the President pointed out yesterday, an attempt to move policymaking from the White House into the department and therefore to make it more accessible to congressional and public scrutiny.

"I would therefore expect to testify about all matters that secretaries of state have traditionally testified." Discussing the effects of Watergate, the sunnied Kissinger noted at his outdoor news conference that Nixon had to cancel a Latin American trip "because he has been preoccupied with domestic matters."

He said he believed the effect of Watergate on the conduct of foreign policy can be minimized, especially since an effort will be made to emphasize foreign policies that have the widest possible support among the American people.

Kissinger said he intends to make a previously scheduled trip to Peking, but that it would not be appropriate to do so until after he gets Senate confirmation.

He cautioned against linking his Peking trip with any possible Cambodia peace negotiations. That problem now depends "to a great extent on the decisions of the Cambodian parties," he said.

Prosecutor says 26 subpoenaed for trial

Twenty-six persons have received subpoenas to appear at the first degree murder trial of Vernon Threatt, Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming told The Democrat-Capitol.

Threatt, 19, a former airman at Whiteman AFB, goes on trial Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in the Cole County Circuit Court in Jefferson City on charges that he killed Otha Brown, 71, LaMonte.

Brown's body was found Feb. 6 tied to a tree in a wooded area west of LaMonte on Highway 50. Threatt, a native of Cleveland, Ohio, was apprehended there Feb. 15.

Threatt's trial was transferred to Cole County on a change of venue filed in Pettis County Circuit Court.

Fleming said Brude Houdek, an assistant state attorney general, will present the major portion of the case to the 12-man jury, which will be selected beginning at 9 a.m. Monday.

Fleming said Houdek has tried "45 to 50 criminal cases," served two years with the federal district attorney's office in Kansas City and served three years as a federal public defender. Fleming said he would be present during the entire trial.

The prosecuting attorney also said that if a conviction is obtained the attorney general's office would be solely responsible to represent the state in appeal proceedings.

Eugene Bushmann, Jefferson City, was hired by Threatt as his attorney. Cole County Circuit Court Judge Byron Kinder will hear the case.

Fleming said two persons have received subpoenas by the defense: Ledell Reese and Reginald Green, both airmen at Whiteman.

Fleming said the following persons have received subpoenas to appear at the trial as possible witnesses for the prosecution:

From LaMonte: Mrs. Terry Molyneux, Paul Moore, Jim Ripley, Mary Dunlap and Joseph C. Caraway.

From Whiteman AFB: Sgt. Michael Jackson, Sgt. Emanuel Granger, Maurice Dunlap, Stanley R. Scott, James Pineiro, Daniel L. Adair and Stephen F. McKelley.

From the Highway Patrol Troopers: Charles Pieper, E. J. Daytiner and Sgt. S. A. Wollard, all of Sedalia; H. W. Battmer, M. D. Buesing and R. G. Place, all of Lee's Summit; Everett H. Markway and Thomas Buehl, laboratory technicians.

Others receiving subpoenas were Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax, Deputy James Lawson, Pettis County Surveyor Keith Ekstrom and Pettis County Coroner Dr. John Owens.

Fleming said the eight persons who testified at Threatt's March 19 preliminary hearing in Pettis County Magistrate Court have received subpoenas. They are Mrs. Molyneux, Paul Moore, Troopers

'Visions' contain some consistency

NEW YORK (AP) — In rare instances, some Christian believers report personal, visual encounters with Jesus. Studies of the phenomenon by two Swedish sociologists have turned up some consistent characteristics about it.

The scientists, Berndt Gustafsson and Gunnar Hillerdal of the Institute of Religious Sociology, report that interviews with about 20 people who claim such experiences show that they usually describe Jesus in similar terms.

Most of them say they saw him as a "shining figure with tender, sparkling eyes and many said He blessed them with outstretched arms," the sociologists said. They said most of the reported encounters took place in people's own homes, a few while they were at work, but none in church.

The findings are among numerous recent reports of research touching on religion. One of them, by Dr. George W. Comstock of the John Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health, did so only accidentally without intending to do so.

Coincidence or not, however, the analysis of replies to socio-economic questionnaires found that men who did not go to church regularly were twice as likely to have heart attacks as those who went once a week or more.

In a similar vein, a study of consumer attitudes done some time ago by a public relations firm, Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn, found that religious people are "notably happier" than nonreligious people.

The findings singled out eight different elements connected with happiness, with religion found to be the most highly correlated and people claiming to be "very religious" mostly likely to be "very happy."

Another study, indicating that religious belief remains about as high as ever, was made by the Kansas City Star.

In telephone interviews with 281 persons in that heartland area, representing a broad range in age and education, the Star's religion editor Helen T. Gott found that 96.1 per cent believe in God.

Only 1 per cent did not believe and 3.2 per cent were uncertain. The high proportion of belief is about the same as that which has turned up for more than 20 years in similar surveys, both regional and national.

Say crisis developing in national leadership

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen looking beyond the partisan gains and losses of Watergate see a crisis developing in the national leadership as a result of President Nixon's waning influence on Capitol Hill.

The climax could come this fall, says Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., with Nixon either recovering enough ground to carry on with reduced authority or being forced by events to resign.

Although either prospect would enhance congressional power, neither is pleasing to Udall or other congressmen concerned about the future relationship between Congress and the executive branch.

"Our system of government requires a strong executive and we're just not going to have one as long as Nixon remains in office," Rep. Sam M. Gibbons, D-Fla., said in an interview. "We have serious leadership problems with the economy that have to be solved."

Neither Gibbons nor Udall sees any likelihood that Nixon will be impeached. "It's too wrenching, too severe," said Udall in a radio interview

Sirica's decision within next week

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tough federal judge who presided over the Watergate trial says he will decide within a week whether to order President Nixon to release tape recordings of nine presidential conversations.

U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, who already had received 123 pages of written argument, listened to a two-hour courtroom debate Wednesday between Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox and Charles Alan Wright, President Nixon's lawyer.

He said he would rule by next Wednesday on Cox's request that he order the President to obey a subpoena demanding the tapes of conversations about Watergate.

Wright disclosed in his argument that he has not heard the tapes.

"The President has told me that in one of the tapes there is national security information so sensitive that he does not feel free even to reveal it to me," Wright said.

Cox argued that the President's "duty to produce evidence is a firm legal duty and involves no judgment on his part."

"The President has no power, like a king, to withhold evidence from a court."

In his news conference Wednesday, the President repeated that "we will not agree to the Senate committee's desire to have, for example, its chief investigator listen to the tapes, or the special prosecutor's desire to listen to the tapes also."

Nixon said he would oppose "any compromise to the principle of confidentiality."

Wright argued that "if we go back only 18 months...no body that I know of...no body that the court has the power to overrule the judgment of the President."

It was Watergate, said Wright, that has brought about this change in interpretation of the Constitution.

Wright also contended that to hold that Sirica, a district court judge, has the power to order the President to surrender confidential documents would set a precedent for all 400 federal District court judges in the country.

Rural church struggles for survival

Ed. Note — In a July 8, story in The Democrat-Capital about country churches, it was noted by several local clergymen that the rural church was likely to disappear soon from Missouri. One church, however, has decided not to close its doors.

By ROY M. CLARK
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

It is generally agreed that the country church is on the way out. But one Pettis County Baptist church doesn't think so.

The Bethlehem Baptist Church, five miles south of Sedalia on the Grand Avenue road, recently undertook the job of modernizing and expanding its facility.

In the first phase of a two-part operation, the building has been jacked into the air while a new foundation replaces two previous foundations. The new foundation was expanded to include basement kitchen and bathroom facilities.

Sunday school superintendent Hansel Morris, who operates Morris Ready-Mixed Concrete Co., Lincoln, is doing most of the work. He said an inscription dated 1924 was discovered in the foundation, and parts of an even older base, believed to be the original, were also found.

A second phase of construction includes plans to add one or two rooms, but Morris said the main goal now is to get the new groundwork in place before bad weather. The second phase is still speculation, he said.

"The main reason is this old foundation is in bad shape ...

Fights trend

Hansel Morris, Lincoln, moves some dirt around the footings of the new foundation at the Bethlehem Baptist Church, south of Sedalia. The church, which nearly folded last winter in a battle with dwindling attendance, has engaged in a building program and has seen attendance rise in recent months.

With heavy rains it floods and makes it difficult to hold classes," Morris said.

The entire project is estimated to cost $10,000 to $12,000 and will be paid through a loan and an undetermined amount of funds from the estate of the late Mamie McCormick.

Morris indicated the first part of remodeling would be about half the total cost.

Morris and Pastor Clarence Barker are doing the work and will be paid as would any other contractors, Morris said.

The two were found on lunch break under nearby shade trees. The obvious question to ask was why the church undertook the task.

"Progress," Mr. Barker said. "You can't grow on a part-time situation." The church has not had full-time services for several years. During that time attendance had dwindled to only a handful.

Since Mr. Barker came to the church last spring, attendance has slowly risen with 30 or more persons now worshipping on occasion.

"I've previously asked the Lord for a 100-member congregation by next April," he said.

Both men thought the decision was a good one for the church and neighborhood. "It'll give us some more Sunday School classroom space we haven't had," Morris said. "We've got more people in the neighborhood than ever before."

"It'll give us a little better opportunity to give fellowship to churches in our association," Mr. Barker added.

The pastor discounted any belief that small numbers of Christians are ineffective. "The country church always had small numbers. I believe it is your attitude. As long as we keep a positive attitude, we can't help but grow. The main thing is to follow the leadership of the Lord."

Mr. Barker previously served at the Poplar Baptist Church south of Lincoln. It had been closed and had only three active members when he started.

After a similar building program there, attendance rose to an average of 45 before he came to Bethlehem Baptist Church.

"I felt the call here," he said of his move. "I feel you can't stand still... There's bound to be growth" with some work.

Explaining his opposition to closing any rural church Mr. Barker said simply, "That's a victory for the devil."

Church must move its new building

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — A little church congregation of 47 people recently moved into a new $40,000 building on the outskirts of Hannibal. But it appears that either the congregation or the church is going to have to move.

It was not discovered until the church was completed that the building extended 20 feet onto a 50-foot power line easement held by the city.

The Hannibal Board of Public Works considered the situation at a meeting Wednesday and authorized the city attorney to take legal action to have the church building moved. Supt. Cal Davis said there is a 34,500-volt power line above the building and "believe me that's dangerous."

The Rev. Carl Amos, pastor of the little Riverview church of the Nazarene, said he was shocked to learn the building is located on a city easement outside the city limits.

Religions finally get credit for contribution

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Although recognizing that good laws always are based on fundamental moral principles, lawyers rarely have given formal credit to the source of those principles — the age-old religions of the world.

But now the legal profession is doing so — on a global scale.

"It's high time for it," says Charles S. Rhyne, a Washington, D.C., attorney who heads up an international conference of about 3,000 lawyers, judges and law professors convening this weekend in Abidjan in West Africa's Ivory Coast.

"All just laws basically go right back to religious principles, whether acknowledged or not, and it's important to bring out this connection," he says.

To point up the interdependence of the two spheres, the observance of "World Law Day" this Sunday is being focused on the theme of religion and the law.

"Religion and the rule of law complement each other," says Rhyne, former president of the American Bar Association and now president of the World Peace through Law Center, which has 100,000 members in 140 nations.

Observing that law derives from ethical principles developed over the centuries out of religious ideals Rhyne

Man's ordeal is subject of film here

The story of Capt. Howard Rutledge's life as a prisoner in the "Hanoi Hilton" in North Vietnam will be shown in a film presentation at 7 p.m. Sunday at Maplewood Church east of Sedalia.

The film, entitled "In the Presence of Mine Enemies," is being premiered here by Mid-America Films Inc. The film discusses a "drop-out" Baptist layman and his life in a Communist prison camp, and how he rediscovered the necessity of faith. Capt. Rutledge's plane was shot down over North Vietnam in 1965.

The Rev. James Kane, pastor of the church, said the first showing of the film here is open to the public.

Soldier is charged with another's death

FT. GORDON, Ga. (AP) — A 25-year-old soldier from St. Louis has been charged with the Aug. 21 death of Pfc. Ernest Thrift.

A spokesman at Ft. Gordon said Pvt. Richard E. Avery was charged with murder Thursday under the provisions of the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

According to military police, the 25-year-old Thrift died nearly three hours after an altercation on a post street. He suffered fatal injuries when his head was struck against a street curbing.

British steel mill to be pollution-free

ROTHERHAM, England (AP) — Britain's state-owned steel corporation is building this country's first pollution-free steel mill, a plant designed to erase the grimy and noisy image of heavy industry.

The $67.5 million mill has been specially designed to eliminate air and water pollution and to minimize noise in the River Don Valley of Yorkshire.

The British Steel Corp.—BSC—boasts it will be as technically advanced as any in Europe. It will be built to specifications laid out by Lord Melchett, the BSC head until his death in June and a strong advocate of environment protection.

Preparation of the mill site, near Rotherham in northern England, started in May. Production is expected to begin in mid-1975, with the mill producing 400,000 metric tons of high quality steel bars annually by 1977.

The mill will be part of British Steel's Aldwarke and Roundwood steel-making complex. It will be known as the Thrybergh Bar Mill.

Close attention has been paid by its designers to eradicating pollution from the production process.

A BSC spokesman said: "As far as air pollution is concerned, the crucial stage of the operation, which is the reheating furnace, will use a low sulphur fuel."

"This will result in no visible emission and the stack height will be so arranged to ensure effective dispersal and negligible contamination of the atmosphere."

The plant will take its water supply from the Don. The spokesman said: "Steps have been taken to ensure the water, used for cooling, will probably be cleaner when it is put back into the river than it was when we removed it."

He added: "The main noise problem comes toward the end of production when the finished bars are rattling about. We are doing as much as possible to damp this down."

The mill is being built on ground only half a mile from the village of Thrybergh which lies on the main Rotherham to Doncaster road.

A natural incline will hide most of the plant from view but additional landscaping is being included in the project to ensure that mill buildings do not interfere with the visual surroundings.

Eagleton addresses hearing

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton (D-Mo.) said today that the Nixon Administration will not find it easy to regain public confidence in its economic programs for the nation.

"Their track record on economics isn't very good," Eagleton said, "and they won't get back the people's confidence by urging even more consumer belt-tightening at the same time that major banks and corporations are allowed to pile up record profits."

In the text of a speech prepared for delivery at the opening of a hearing on Missouri's view on the national economy, Sen. Eagleton said the economy is the one issue that stands out for special attention in the eyes of residents of the state that he has spoken to. The hearing, held at the Busch Memorial Center at St. Louis University, is one of several Eagleton plans to hold across the state.

The senator said that figures prepared by economists do not truly reflect what is felt and experienced by the people who are facing rising prices. He said his hearings are designed to give him a better understanding of the attitudes and opinions of the citizens of Missouri.

Eagleton said he wished the Administration well in its efforts to boost the economy because, "The economic well-being of all Americans is a goal that transcends partisan political consideration."

He said he believed that, given the proper leadership, the nation has the resources and the strength to overcome the present obstacles and return to "the economics of abundance."

Scheduled to testify at the hearing were spokesmen for labor, consumers, students, the elderly, the meat and restaurant industries and gasoline distributors.

Naptha fumes are discovered in sewer line

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Officials are continuing their investigation to try to determine the source of naptha traces that were found in a sewer line in suburban Sugar Creek.

Residents of the area noticed naptha fumes coming from the sewer system Sunday. The sewer system is about two miles south of an Amoco refinery.

After discovery of the fumes, the oil company halted use of its naptha pipeline which runs parallel to the city sewer line.

Anthony S. Jasso, Sugar Creek public works director, said the city is flushing the sewers to relieve gases and prevent a dangerous build-up.

Jim Rardon, Polo, Mo., sights in on a target during an archery exhibition Friday afternoon at the Fairgrounds. Rardon, an archer for about five years, provides archery demonstrations daily behind "Kicksville" on the grounds as well as giving bow-hunting tips. The bow Rardon is using is a 35-pound target bow equipped with sights, counter-balancing equipment and a stabilizer, which is the long rod sticking out the front of the bow. An archery meet is scheduled for most of the day Sunday on the northwestern part of the grounds. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

A coroner's jury in February said that Brown died due to "exposure to the elements" and also that a felony had been committed in his death.

Brown was the former owner of the "Dairy Isle" ice cream stand on Highway 50 in LaMonte. His body was found about a half-mile west of the stand by Trooper Dayringer and Sgt. Woolard after a missing persons report was received by Fairfax the day before.

airport approached him and asked when he was going to stop the killing.

"I didn't know the show was that bad," Hope laughed in reply.

In answer to a question about his present opinion of President Nixon, Hope commended Nixon for ending the war, opening communications with China and "getting a big part of the 'enemy' thing out of the way."

Hope added that politics today are no different than 15 or 20 years ago. "It's all happened before...every administration has its scandal...for example, in England it's not Watergate, but waterbed," he joked.

In response to a question about the recent Supreme Court ruling on the censorship of X rated movies, Hope said he felt it definitely would change the content of future movies.

"I never dreamed 20 years ago that they'd show stag films for the whole family. People don't want their children to see these movies...I can't see where any of these kinds of films can help anyone."

When asked to what he attributes the success of his long marriage, when Hollywood marriages are notorious for being short, Hope replied, "travel...besides my wife likes to golf...she travels with me...and we have a lot of mutual likes and dislikes."

One newsman asked Hope if he had any plans for retirement. Hope displayed his talent for creating humor out of just about any topic by saying, "No...well, I did this morning when I tried to get up."

The FFA grand champion Poland boar and gilt were shown Wednesday by Gail, Harlan and Jerry Reid, Houstonia. The Reid's are in their 10th year of competition at the swine show where they have won more than 20 blue ribbons.

The grand champion Holstein in 4-H competition belongs to Pamela Sue King, Clever, who captured the contest with her cow named "Joki Marquis Claudia."

Making a practice dive in front of the grandstand at 1:30 p.m. Friday, in preparation for their official jump Saturday afternoon during the late model auto races, members of the Navy parachute teams thrilled Fair-goers with their skydiving exploits. The group came to Sedalia from San Diego, Calif.

Also entertaining and informing Fair visitors Friday were four officers of the St. Louis police department. Their display, located west of the Fair administration building, depicted the police department's functions and offers Fairgoers a chance to view a modern gun and weapons display and new patrol cars.

In addition, the officers also conducted an afternoon performance of the Canine Corps, trained police dogs demonstrating jumps, responses to various commands and a simulated narcotics search.

In their efforts to win the championship water racing title, coon dogs competed Friday not only for the title but also a total of $3,300 in prizes. The races will also be held at 1 p.m. Saturday and Sunday near the sheep pavilion.

Also beginning a three-day championship contest are horse shoe throwers from across the state who will vie for top honors and a total of $791 in prize money at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Continuing Friday and into the weekend is the horse show in the coliseum. Quarter horse racing begins at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. Other Friday activities include miniature mule competition at 7 p.m. in the coliseum, harness and pony races at 1:30 p.m., and modified stock car racing at 8 p.m.

Weekend events are scheduled to provide no lapse in entertainment as the Fair enters its final two days. Included are 100-mile stock car racing at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, late model car sprints championship racing at 8 p.m. Saturday, the Appaloosa horse show at 9 a.m., 12 p.m. and 6 p.m. Saturday, and the fox hound bench show at 8 p.m. in the sheep pavilion.

Short strike
appear dim

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The prospects for a short strike against the St. Louis Post-Dispatch were dim today following the rejection of a contract proposal Thursday night by striking members of Teamsters Union Local 610.

The union voted down a wage and cost of living adjustment offer made by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Globe-Democrat by a margin of 145 to 25. Harland Horn, secretary-treasurer of the union said the offer was the same one rejected by the union negotiating team shortly before the strike was called Tuesday night, at the expiration of its three-year contract.

Only the Post was picketed by the Teamsters, but the strike prevents the publication of the Globe as well because it is printed under contract by the Post.

"We (the negotiators) turned the offer down," Horn said, "but the newspapers asked that we submit it to a vote of the membership. We recommended that it be rejected."

Horn, whose union represents 32 dockhands at the Post and about 170 drivers of trucks that deliver the two newspapers, said the offer contained provisions for a 95-cent-an-hour increase over a three-year period and a maximum cost of living adjustment of 22 cents over the last two years of the contract.

He said the union has demanded a hike of $1.20 over the three years and a normal cost of living adjustment for the full period.

"But the central issue in the strike is still the jobs of the dockhands," Horn said. The union has demanded that the dockhands work in trucks at the new Post-Dispatch plant in St. Louis County.

The newspaper has maintained that automated equipment at the plant makes such manning unnecessary.

Horn said after the vote Thursday night that the union is willing to resume negotiations any time on any issue. Earlier, however, he said the Teamsters refused to submit the dispute to an unbiased arbitrator because "there's no such animal." He said Thursday he could not foresee how long the strike would last.

The strike has idled about 2,000 employees at the Post and another 250 at the Globe.

Richardson
orders leak
investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — An acting assistant attorney general has been ordered by Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson to investigate supposed leaks of information from the Justice Department about kickback allegations against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Richardson also has asked FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley to make FBI personnel available as needed to assist in the inquiry.

The attorney general disclosed these steps in a letter Thursday to Agnew, who has complained of "vicious and illegal" leaks to news media about the allegations against him in a Maryland kickback investigation.

Richardson said he has put acting Asst. Atty. Gen. Glen E. Pommerening in charge of the probe.

"Should any of the leaks be traced to Department of Justice personnel, departmental regulations providing administrative sanctions, including dismissal, will apply," Richardson said in his letter to Agnew.

A Justice Department source said Thursday that at least some of the allegations made publicly about the criminal investigation involving Agnew are erroneous.

He said many of the allegations sound "like it's getting out second or third hand."

He speculated that some leaks might be coming from the White House but said such leaks wouldn't necessarily be intentional, but might be the product of sloppy handling of information relayed by the Justice Department.

"There are two people at the White House who are kept fully informed on what our findings are," said a Justice Department source, referring to President Nixon and his chief of staff, Alexander M. Haig Jr. "It's not inconceivable that information could have filtered down through other staff from them and gotten out that way."

Baptists consider new director, audit

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Selection of a new executive director and discussion of a financial audit by a Springfield firm were the main items of business here today for leaders of the Missouri Baptist Convention.

The 51-member executive board will meet in the afternoon to name a successor to the late Dr. Earl O. Harding, the executive director for 19 years.

The Rev. Dr. Harding, who died two weeks ago of a heart attack, had been questioned about the convention's financial situation and about his use of future housing allowances to buy a house.

Before he died, Harding paid back about $40,000 and secured a housing loan from a bank. The Rev. Dr. Harding had been advanced $62,500 in 1968.

To poll county's residents about
solid waste plan

A questionnaire will be sent out soon to a group of rural county residents to determine their attitudes toward the state solid waste act.

The questionnaire was compiled by Stan Ponce, area community development specialist with the University of Missouri Extension Service.

Under the solid waste act, cities and counties must devise a solid waste disposal plan by June 30 next year. However, rural residents will still be able to dispose their solid waste on their own property if no public nuisance or problem is created.

The decision to survey county residents was made at a July 18 meeting of the Pettis County Rural Waste Planning Committee and the Pettis County Court.

The questionnaire asks residents whether they are familiar with the provisions of the solid waste act, what items they do not dispose on their own property and whether they would prefer a "house-to-house" pickup plan or dump stations.

The proposal also asks how the county should finance the system and whether they would be interested in having an informational program presented in their area.

The County Court is the responsible agency for all rural and unincorporated areas of the county under this act. The questionnaire notes.

Packed house greets Bob Hope

By MARY LOU VOSSMEYER
Democrat-Capitol Staff Writer

Bob Hope, who was introduced at Thursday night's State Fair grandstand performance as the world's "most decorated civilian," acquired one more curio for his collection of awards.

In addition to proclaiming Thursday as Bob Hope Day, Gov. Christopher Bond presented Hope with the last of the most prestigious (un-numbered) license plates. It was inscribed with the words "Aug. 1973 — Missouri's official ham."

In turn, Hope presented Bond with a picture of himself kissing a Missouri ham. The inscription read: "like kissing a relative."

Hope made his entrance to the tune of deafening applause from a packed house. He mentioned that the audience "must have come from as far as St. Joseph" and then sang a humorous ditty about the pleasures of applause.

"It bought me my clothes and made me proud of this nose," he crooned.

Throughout his performance, Hope talked — and even sang — about everything from sex to politics. He confirmed the fact that he will not be performing overseas this year by saying, "I'm going to stay home and entertain the Watergate wounded... I've had enough of Watergate... they ought to flush it."

Hope added that he thinks Watergate is getting too political. He said it is giving politics a bad name. But in the next breath, he commended Missourians for "giving politics a real good name... with a real fine, good-looking governor."

He added that Missouri has the first State House he has ever seen with a playpen — where he was offered a "Scotch and Pabulum."

"But I know he's a religious man," Hope continued, "and I think politicians should pray — it keeps their hands out where we can watch them."

On sex in films, Hope expressed his disappointment with society's taste in entertainment.

"I can't make pictures anymore — at least not the kind they're making today. I couldn't pass the physical," Hope said. "and I didn't even do that kind of stuff on my honeymoon — I didn't think of it."

"When I was a kid," Hope

"Hamming" it up

Following his performance to a packed audience Thursday night at the Fair, comedian Bob Hope presented Gov. Christopher Bond with a picture of himself kissing a Missouri ham. The inscription on the picture read, "Like added, "my idea of fun was going into the attic and looking at the lingerie ads in the Sears Roebuck catalogue."

Hope also got in a few digs about England's latest scandal. He said it was his understanding that their new theme song is "London Britches Falling Down." He added that Henry Kissinger should be interested in that, since he is an expert in foreign affairs.

During his act, Hope sang a humorous duet "with country Western singer Jody Miller and introduced Miss Beautiful America, Patricia Price.

Toward the end of his performance, Hope sang one "straight" song about a GI returning home. "Tie a Yellow Ribbon," Hope said "I get a little tear in my eye when I hear that tune" because it reminds him of the many GI's he entertained overseas.

"A lot of Americans can get up and take a bow for adding peace to the world," Hope said.

Just before Hope's appearance, Miss Jody Miller entertained the crowd with a variety of country Western, and rock songs, such as "He's So Fine" and her first hit, "Queen of the House." At one point Miss Miller asked someone from the audience to help her with a song. A young man from Wheeling, Mo., clad in jeans and a blue plaid work shirt volunteered. Miss Miller concluded with a medley of "Dixie" and "All My Trials," an old folk ballad.

Other entertainment included performances by the Dana Kinsman Orchestra and a rock group, the North Door.

Japanese postpone talks with South Korean cabinet

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese cabinet today postponed talks with members of the South Korean cabinet, demonstrating a sudden deterioration in relations between the two Asian neighbors.

The conference scheduled for Sept. 7-8 was postponed because of the case of Kim Dae Jung, a political foe of Korean President Chung Hee Park who vanished from a Tokyo hotel Aug. 8 and turned up in Seoul five days later. Kim said he had been kidnapped by Koreans, and it is generally assumed that Park's Central Intelligence Agency did it.

Despite the South Korean government's denial that it was involved in Kim's disappearance, Japanese Justice Minister Isaji Tanaka said Thursday if agents of the Seoul government agents were responsible, they had violated Japanese sovereignty.

Kim trailed Park by less than a million votes in the 1971 election and to escape arrest had lived in Japan and America since Park proclaimed martial law in Korea last October. It is generally believed in Japan that he was kidnapped to silence his criticisms of Park's regime, and that the only thing that saved him from being imprisoned when he was brought back to Seoul was intervention by the U.S. government.

The Japanese decision to postpone the annual ministerial talks had been reported earlier but was made official only today by the cabinet of Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka. The cabinet said it hoped the meeting could be held later this year.

Chief Cabinet Secretary Susumu Nikaido also hinted

Thursday that his government might consider halting economic aid to South Korea if an investigation proved a Korean government agency was involved in Kim's disappearance. The Korean government today closed down the Seoul bureau of the Japanese newspaper Yomiuri and ordered the bureau chief to leave the country by Monday.

Fishing at the Fair

This unidentified youngster tries his hand at trout fishing at the Fair Wednesday, under the watchful eye of his father. Two pools of rainbow trout are located behind the Long Branch Saloon, with poles provided at no charge.

Trout tease Fairgoers

By JOE KELL
Democrat-Capitol Staff Writer

A state fair, if nothing else, should be a place where people can see and do things they have never had the time or opportunity to do before.

The 1973 Missouri State Fair offers at least one such attraction for many people, two trout fishing ponds located behind the Long Branch Family Saloon and just north of the Missouri Conservation Department exhibit.

Dwight Emerson, owner of the ponds and the rainbow trout stocked in them, said many people who stopped at the ponds had never seen trout, let alone fished for them.

Predict 550-650
holiday fatalities

CHICAGO (AP) — Labor Day weekend traffic fatalities may run between 550 and 650 persons, the National Safety Council estimates.

The council made its estimate Thursday. It said the period covered by the holiday fatality toll will extend from 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31, to midnight Monday, Sept. 3, in each time zone.

There were 580 traffic deaths during the Labor Day period in 1972.

In early times bells were not cast, but were made of thin plates of hammered iron riveted together.

fish for the trout, nor is any sort of license needed. However, if you do catch a fish, you must pay $1.95 per pound for it. For this charge, your fish will be cleaned, packaged and iced.

As an added feature, if you would like to eat your catch in a hurry, the Long Branch Saloon will cook the fish and provide the trimmings for $1.75.

Emerson said most of the fish stocked in the two pools ranged in size from 12 ounces to 3½ pounds. He said the average size fish run about 1½ to 2 pounds.

The trout came from the Crystal Lake Fisheries of Ava, which is operated by Emerson, who said about 2,200 pounds of fish have been brought in since the Fair opened, with another 600 pounds due in before the Fair ends. He said Fairgoers had caught about 1,300 pounds so far.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond and Commissioner of Agriculture James B. Boillot both caught fish Wednesday, according to Emerson. Bond landed a 1¼ pound fish, but Boillot caught his fish first.

Emerson said he often took the trout pools to sports shows and shopping centers, but decided to try the Fair this year.

"We wanted a contract with the Fair to pay us a flat fee, and let people's catches be free, but the Fair didn't have that kind of money," Emerson said.

He also said he wasn't sure he would be back with his fish next year. One possible reason he gave was that the location he had this year wasn't too good, especially at night.

"But I think this is a benefit," Emerson said. Definitely a benefit for the person who would like to fish, but doesn't want to invest money in equipment and licenses when he can't be assured of a catch. At least at the Fair, if you don't catch anything, you don't pay anything.

Polly's pointers

Buy larger sizes for baby's gift

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns baby clothes. Nowadays babies grow so fast they get little wear from their baby gifts that are soon too small for them. Perhaps some of this could be remedied if those loving friends and relatives who shower babies with gifts would buy larger sizes, even for newborn babies, and then they would get more wear out of the clothes. Everyone is just waiting for an excuse to buy those darling little clothes without giving much thought to the sizes and how fast the babies grow. — F. E. S.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I would like some suggestions how one can sharpen the dull blades in a garbage disposal. — KAREN

DEAR POLLY — Edith asked how she could wash and whiten laces and linens that belonged to her grandmother. I wanted my children to wear the dress I was christened in. Being made of hand-embroidered batiste with lace trim, it is very sheer and delicate so I, too, was afraid of using bleach. Finally I soaked the dress in a solution of cold water detergent, water and a name-brand diaper product. After soaking for 24 hours the dress was rinsed and dried. It came out white as new and there was no trace of damage to the material or lace. All traces of yellow and age were gone. Now I always keep one of these diaper products in my laundry room to use for special jobs such as removing yellow from table linens, dresser scarves and crocheted tablecloths. Surely this will work as well on Edith's nice things. — JAN

DEAR POLLY — Years ago, when I was first married, my Mom gave me an invaluable hint for keeping an always tidy and neat kitchen. Each day, after doing the dishes, I do one extra chore — defrosting, cleaning the oven or stove or cleaning out the drawers. Also, while I am in the kitchen for a time, I batch of cookies, make a pot of soup or stew or something that might be needed that day. — FRAN

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. J. C. R. wanted a solution for cleaning walls easily, without rinsing, so they would not streak when the shower was on. I find a tri-sodium phosphate product, available at paint stores, is the answer to most cleaning problems. Follow directions on the package. Also do start cleaning from the bottom and work up to avoid streaks. — MRS. M. F. B.

Californians to reap one-time tax bonanza

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Californians begin reaping a one-time tax bonanza Oct. 1, getting back a total of $721 million in state treasury surplus.

That figures out to nearly $35 for every man, woman and child in the state.

Gov. Ronald Reagan called it the largest state tax rebate in the nation's history when he signed the bill into law Thursday.

The reverse flow of taxes was made possible by an unexpected treasury surplus of $829 million built up over the past two years.

Reagan insisted the money be returned to the taxpayers rather than be spent on new programs. The tax rebate will take two forms.

First, the state sales tax will be rolled back by one penny on the dollar on Oct. 1 for six months. It had gone from five to six per cent in most of California July 1.

Next spring, the state's more than 6 million income tax payers are to get cuts ranging from 20 per cent to 100 per cent off their tax bills due April 15.

The Republican governor said Thursday he won the tax rebate over the opposition of "would-be big spenders" in the legislature.

Brazil making its own commercial airliners

SAO JOSE DOS CAMPOS, Brazil (AP) — Brazil has joined the restricted club of world nations that make their own commercial airliners. The twin-engine turboprop Bandeirante — an exclusively Brazilian plane designed and built in this huge South American country — recently began flying short hauls on Trans-Brazil Airlines routes in three southern states. Another local commercial line, VASP, plans to have Bandeirantes in service before the end of the year. The manufacturer, a government-controlled firm called EMBRAER, hopes some day to sell Bandeirantes to other countries around the globe. Bandeirante means "pioneer" in Portuguese, Brazil's national language. Planes here must be tough enough to take off and land on short unpaved runways, yet light and powerful enough to cover the distances of this country's underdeveloped interior.

"Ideally, we need a plane that could take off from a soccer field and fly at supersonic speeds, yet still be reasonably priced and simply put together," said Col. Ozires Silva, EMBRAER's general manager. "But that was not possible. So we did the best we could, and the result was the Bandeirante."

"For price and performance, the Bandeirante has no competitor in the world," declared Ronaldo Olive, editor of a Brazilian monthly aviation newsletter. "It sells for half as much as a British Avro and one-third as much as a Japanese Samurau, and its cost per mile is less than half of that of those two planes."

Many airlines around the world, especially in developing countries, fly Avros and Samurau on short runs. Trans-Brazil, the smallest of Brazil's four commercial airlines, is using Bandeirantes to replace its British-built Dart Heralds. The company says the Bandeirante requires fewer passengers to reach the break-even point on short flights.

The Bandeirante carries 15 passengers. It has a cruising speed of 260 miles an hour and range of 1,150 miles. It can take off from a 1,160-foot runway. It also can be adapted to serve as a cargo plane or a flying executive office.

Brazilians have been designing and building airplanes since 1913. But because of a lack of money, a large percentage of them wound up as one-shot prototypes.

EMBRAER began operating in 1970. The government controls 51 per cent of its voting stock, while private shareholders — mostly large firms — hold 71 per cent of the total stock, currently worth $18 million.

The Brazilian government allows private companies to invest 1 per cent of the federal income tax they owe each year in EMBRAER instead of paying it to the national treasury. The number of private shareholders in EMBRAER jumped from 1,035 in 1970 to 73,000 in 1972. Major stockholders include Brazilian subsidiaries of General Motors, Volkswagen and British American Tobacco Co.

Kansas man drowns

CAMDENTON, Mo. (AP) — Dwayne L. Hall, 44, of Lawrence, Kan., drowned in Libby Cove on the Niangua arm of the Lake of Ozarks while swimming alone Thursday evening. The body was recovered about two hours later by members of the Missouri Boat Commission.

Charges filed by New Mexico

TAOS, N.M. (AP) — Edwin M. Gaudet, in jail on a federal charge of threatening the President, has been charged by the state with intent to kill three police officers.

Taos Magistrate Norbert Martinez said the state charges stem from an alleged exchange of gunfire during the three-day search for Gaudet in the northern New Mexico mountains near Taos.

Gaudet, 29, a former New Orleans policeman, is being held in Albuquerque under $100,000 bond. U.S. Magistrate Robert McCoy has scheduled a hearing Aug. 30 to determine whether Gaudet should be transferred to Louisiana on the federal charge.

Martinez said Thursday that if Gaudet is taken to New Orleans, "we'll just have to wait — the federal charge takes precedent."

The federal charge carries a maximum penalty of a $1,000 fine and five years in prison or both. The three counts in the state complaint carry a maximum prison sentence of 165 years.

Helicopter crash kills one

PERKINS, Okla. (AP) — An Army helicopter on a training mission crashed into the Cimarron River about six miles west of here Thursday, killing one of the three crew members aboard.

Army officials at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., where the helicopter was based, identified the dead man as Lt. Lynn Jewell of Ft. Leonard Wood.

The craft's other two crew members were injured, but were reported in satisfactory condition in a Stillwater hospital, about 13 miles northwest of the crash site. The Army identified them as Capt. John Wilson, the aircraft's commander, and Lt. Rex Gooch.

Families of all three officers live on the Ft. Leonard Wood post. Their hometowns were not available.

The Army said an inspection team would arrive at the scene Friday to investigate the crash.

The Oklahoma Highway Patrol said the helicopter, on a training flight from Guthrie, Okla., to Tulsa, struck two power lines across the river, went out of control and crashed.

The crash was discovered by a Rural Electric Association worker, Gilbert Lance of Stillwater, while he was investigating a power failure.

No more food for victims of famines

WASHINGTON — When we have met the needs of American consumers, what would you do with the meager remains of this country's agricultural production?

Rowan

Sell it all to the Soviet Union, Japan, the People's Republic of China?

Use much of it to alleviate widespread hunger in West Africa, Asia, Latin America and then sell other nations only the grain not needed to avert famine in poor countries?

That is the kind of choice this country ought never have to make, but the tragic fact is we are already face-to-face with such a decision. And all the power factors seem to push toward selling everything we can while millions of hungry people suffer and die.

Just a few days ago I received a telegram from Larry Ward, president of Food for the Hungry, who has spent 16 years in disaster-relief assistance. He said his tour of the Sahel region of West Africa convinced him that the drought there has created "potentially the most critical famine situation our world has encountered."

Ward told of seeing villagers eating the leaves and roots of trees in Senegal and Mauritania, something already reported from Chad.

C. Payne Lucas, president of AFRICARE, has just returned from the area of eastern Niger around Lake Chad with reports that people are eating diseased animals, with children wrestling over their entrails and drinking their blood.

The long-range prospect for solving the food problems of the Sahel have always been bleak. Now, it seems, because of drastic pressures on the world's food resources, the short-range prospect is quite grim.

As recently as July 5, Dr. A. H. Boerma, director-general of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, raised the specter of an international community unable to respond adequately to distress calls from an area struck by famine "for the simple reason that there were no uncommitted food supplies left."

Dr. Boerma pointed out that in 1971 agricultural production in developing countries increased only 2 per cent, or not enough to equal population growth and less than half of what FAO had targeted. He estimated a 1 per cent decline in 1972 for all developing countries, with a whopping production drop of 4 per cent in the Far East.

So now, after the worst drought of the century in Africa, widespread crop failures in the Soviet Union, and terrible drought followed by devastating floods in India and Bangladesh, it appears the world has plunged into that critical situation where no one has the uncommitted food supplies needed in disaster areas.

More than a dozen private U.S. relief agencies have moved into West Africa to try to avert widespread famine. Some of these groups, like CARE, Catholic Relief Services and Church World Service, have for years used commodities from the U.S. Food for Peace program to feed some 80 million needy people around the world.

But now the U.S. Agriculture Department has warned these agencies that wheat, flour, vegetable oil and other commodities will not be available in August, and perhaps not in September.

These agencies may be forced to suspend relief operations in 50 countries, which would pile calamity on top of catastrophe in West Africa, because the U.S. has no "food for peace." This year's corn, wheat and soybean harvests are now expected to be 302 million bushels below earlier estimates.

The political realities are such that no one expects the government to take food away from American consumers for overseas relief. But what some of the relief agencies are pleading for is that humanitarian programs not be given the absolute lowest priority, with food made available for them only after massive sales to countries like Russia and China are taken care of.

The appeal is for the United States to hold back from sale abroad enough food to make an adequate response to anguished cries for help such as those now coming from Africa.

It is a request a nation of compassionate people must grant.

Meanwhile, all the world's nations must go about coping with a situation where the food supply must be doubled every generation just to keep pace with population growth.

Byways of the '73 Fair

By DOUG KNEIBERT

Hardly anyone visits the Missouri State Fair with any kind of systematic plan. The typical Fair-goer instead wanders here and there as his interests lead. So that's the way I'll approach this column.

I started at the Fine Arts Building, by chance, and was surprised at the quality of work this year. Anyone who thinks the State Fair is just for paint-by-the-numbers artists should take in the exhibition.

The Conservation Building is always a highlight of the Fair, and this year's collection of animals is outstanding. There is a splendid bobcat, a handsome timber wolf, a regal red-tailed hawk and a disgruntled hoot owl, to mention a few.

My favorite was the red fox, vulpes fulva. Totally bored by the sea of human spectators, he did spring to attention when the Macon County R-4 Band paraded by in full blast. The brassy sound didn't even phase several coons, however, who were sacked out atop branches in their cage.

From there I dropped by the Long Branch Saloon, which has been handsomely redecorated by the Jaycees with an eye to period atmosphere. If you haven't seen—and heard—it, catch the Orchestra at the saloon—a remarkable instrument that combines the sounds of a piano, drums, violin, flute and triangle.

The Orchestra was built around 1900 and only recently discovered in an old mining town in Iowa. But watch your step, the Long Branch is prone to being held up every now and then.

Jump to the Midway. There, among other things, Princess Atasha was transformed before my very eyes into a gorilla. The Princess was captured in Niopia, New Guinea, according to the taped pitch, a place, incidentally, that I couldn't find on the map. Must be part of the Lost Continent.

Remember the little steam shovel you used to play at carnivals, getting to keep anything you could pick up and extract from the glass box? Well, they're still there. And, sure enough, so was the same pocket knife I used to try for 20-odd years ago. I've never seen that particular type of pocket knife anywhere else, and evidently no one has won it yet.

The mules and work horses are always worth dropping by to see. Today's mules, slickly manicured and groomed, have little in common with their sweating forebearers, except the same keen intelligence and appealing manner. It's comforting to know that the World Championship Mule title has been returned to its rightful place—Missouri.

Although I don't count myself a true admirer of horse flesh, I do appreciate draft horses. The Belgians and Percherons are truly magnificent beasts, and the Fair's draft horse pull is an exciting display of sheer muscle power that makes its modern day successor, the tractor pull, pale by comparison.

On the way out I dropped by a favorite spot of mine where a modern-day medicine man holds forth in one continuous pitch, the equal of which is not to be found on the Fairgrounds. On this particular occasion he was selling a sewing machine, or at least I think he was selling it, for it's often hard to pin down exactly what he is doing. ("If my own mother, and I love every gray hair in her head, were to pay me $600 for this machine, I would take it and sleep the sleep of the just, knowing that she received full value.")

As I said, it's a highly personal tour of the State Fair. Go out and do your own thing.

Kill-joys for kids in name of safety

Your federal government, which is so concerned about your safety that it may soon be arresting you for not wearing your seat belt, has hit upon another area of dire danger.

The tricycle.

According to the Associated Press, Washington is considering safety standards for tricycles. This is an outgrowth of a study on tricycle safety done by a private firm for the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Engineers who prepared the government report zero in on tricycle "instability" as the main culprit. "All units of traditional design are capable of being rolled over at realizable speeds and steering angles," the report solemnly states. "Realizable" evidently means whatever the average four-year-old can get out of his trike. All of which is a breathtaking scientific insight.

These slide rule kill-joys would redesign the tricycle to eliminate the rear step for carrying riders, the wide, curved handlebars, adjustable seat and unrestricted turning capacity. In short, everything that makes a good trike a lot of fun.

In support of the need for safety standards, the federal government quotes statistics showing that 100,000 kids a year are injured on tricycles. This figure is as suspect as the one that says 700,000 youngsters a year are killed or injured by toys. If these engineers really want to perform a public service, they ought to run down the source of such "statistics" and check out their veracity quotients.

The good thing about the tricycle is that it gives kids experience in balance and control, albeit at the expense of a few skinned elbows and busted lips. So much the better when they graduate to bicycles.

But then again, the way things are going Uncle Sam may soon mandate four wheels for bicycles.

WASHINGTON — The government's war against drug smuggling, trumpeted as one of the major domestic successes of the Nixon administration, is losing the battle to fleets of small private planes and fast boats.

Classified documents from the Customs Bureau made available to us demonstrate the extent of the government's failure. They flatly state that the narcotics agents cannot compete with the ingenuity of the smugglers.

The dope runners have organized the most important small boat operation since the evacuation of Dunkirk and the government's fragmented narcotics forces are unable to cope with them.

"We must undertake a program to provide Customs control of small boat traffic entering the United States," one of the documents asserts. "Smuggling of narcotic drugs by small boats is a serious problem. At present, we have no means of effecting interdiction of drugs entering the United States by this means."

The high-flying dope peddlers operate with equal freedom, hauling their cargo of white powder from Mexico and Canada with virtually no opposition.

"Smuggling by means of private aircraft has grown in a situation where control of this commerce, for technical reasons, was not possible," the documents said.

In short, the situation is so out of hand that Mafia and free-lance traffickers have virtual carte blanche to haul their wares across the United States borders.

Federal antinarcotics officials have made elaborate plans to increase their efficiency in the air and on the water, but budget-conscious bureaucrats have cut out this capability. For this fiscal year alone, the Office of Management and Budget has sliced the Customs budget for these plans from $11.4 million to $3.3 million.

This penny-wise policy is preventing narcotics agents from acquiring sophisticated tools, including aircraft with special tracking equipment, boats fast enough to catch smugglers' craft and sensors to seek out the dope runners.

Merry-go-round

Smugglers of drugs outfox Customs men

The drug fighters are using some electronic sensors borrowed from the military, but find them virtually worthless.

"To date, sensors available for boat surveillance have been rudimentary in nature," one Customs report states. "This situation exists because of the lack of developmental funding and technical capability that has existed for years within the Customs Agency Service."

The heavily publicized seizures of millions of dollars worth of narcotics are largely the work of old-fashioned customs and narcotics agents at ports or elsewhere, based on leads from painstakingly nurtured informants. Arrests of smugglers through random checks of small planes or boats have been few and infrequent.

Presently, the air-sea fight against drugs is badly fragmented between Customs at the Treasury Department and the new Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) at the Justice Department. A memorandum describing a meeting last month between Customs' air intrusion coordinators and George Brosan, a top Customs enforcement official, makes clear that neither agency knows what the other is doing.

There are about 50 planes of various kinds available at any one time to the two agencies for air and boat surveillance. But without cooperation between them through use of informers who signal the departure of a shipment from some lonely harbor or airport, the planes are useless. They cannot "picket-line" the entire border.

DEA, which may wind up with the whole program eventually, is too busy reorganizing to take on any new duties, particularly ones as complicated as the "Air Intrusion" operation.

The overall mess is best summed up by Brosan:

"Both the Drug Enforcement Administration and the Immigration and Naturalization Service have token programs. Neither can compare with the present Customs effort, and possibly some thought ought to be given to combining the three programs."

CIA PIG-STICKER: The men who work for the Central Intelligence Agency are traditionally regarded as close-mouthed characters who spend their waking hours tracking spies and tapping telephones.

Angus MacLean Thuermer, the agency's "public information officer," defies tradition. He is one of the nation's foremost "pig stickers" and he doesn't mind talking about it.

He became addicted to the exotic sport of "pig sticking" — which, in his words, is "a nicely underplayed British term for hunting wild boar on horseback with a spear" — while serving with the Foreign Service in India.

Last year, Thuermer went back to India for another hog hunt. When he returned to the states, he broke CIA tradition and published his memoirs of the hunt in an obscure weekly newspaper called the "Piedmont Virginian."

Although Thuermer rarely has anything to say to reporters about CIA affairs, he waxes poetic about pig sticking. The night before the hunt, he wrote, "people begin to drift off to their tents. You bed down. Too soon 'ta-ta-Ta! TA-TA-Taaaa!' Through the canvas come the insistent notes of reveille."

Out in the wilds, he continued, "you wonder what you are doing here under this brassy sky, amidst these silvery spear tips, in this unbelievable Technicolor extravaganza."

South's decision to open one diamond instead of one club does not meet with our full approval or full disapproval. There is a lot to be said in favor of bidding a strong five-card suit before a weak six-carder when they are next to one another in rank.

As for South's later action all we can say is that he bid his hand like there was no tomorrow.

He also was lucky enough to have bid it to a cinch slam. Playing in clubs he would have to lose a trump trick in addition to the heart trick taken by West at trick one.

Playing in diamonds he simply ruffed the second heart; led a club to dummy's king; a second club back to his ace and a third club to be ruffed by dummy's king of trumps.

Then he led dummy's six of trumps and had his first problem. Should he play East for four trumps to the 10 and finesse his nine or should he rise with a high trump.

The correct percentage play was to rise and he did. Not that it mattered. Either play was going to work for him and his rather silly slam was guaranteed success from the start.

Sweeney toils with scheduling

Biggest field ever for 101-lap race

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

There have been those years in the International Motor Contest Association, when promoters have had to literally scrounge around just to get enough stock cars to put on the annual Missouri International. But 1973 certainly not one of those years.

"We have had more entries filed for the race than any event I can ever recall here at the Missouri State Fair," said Al Sweeney, chairman of the board of National Speedways, promoters of the annual event.

"In fact, I had to turn down about 20 entries just this week...as it stands now, 70 cars have entered...I don't anticipate that every single one will show, but it certainly will be the biggest field ever for this race," he added.

This year the race has been extended to 101 laps on the mile track, making it the longest dirt stock car race in Missouri on a mile track.

But just when everything — especially the entries — seemed to be going smoothly, another problem cropped up. The finals in the quarter horse division, originally scheduled for Tuesday morning in front of the grandstand, were recently moved to Saturday morning. The move was made around two months ago sources indicated Thursday, but no one seemed to pay much attention to it until Sweeney brought up the fact that the track needed to be completely watered Friday night in preparation for Saturday's 101-mile feature.

If there's anything that quarter horses don't need it's a sloppy, wet track.

"Right now," said State Fair Secretary Ron Jones mid-week, "we are going to move the quarter horse races up as much as we can...possibly to 7 a.m." The schedule calls for them to take the track at 8:30 a.m.

Commissioner of Agriculture, James Boillot, said Thursday that "...they might not get moved all the way back to 7 (a.m.), but we are going to have to get going earlier than what the schedule calls for."

Meanwhile, Sweeney said in his National Speedways office, "...If the thing (track) is too dusty, I'm going to have to alter my plans...we can't have the drivers racing under conditions like that..."

Sweeney did mention the possibility that the race might be moved to the half-mile track. "I don't want to even consider that possibility right now...we are advertising a 101-lap race on a mile track, not a 202-lap race on a half-mile track."

Boillot, Jones, Sweeney, as well as the quarter horse division of the Fair and maintenance foreman Charles Ramseyer were taking a "wait and see" attitude until Saturday.

"I'm really afraid that we are going to get behind schedule," Sweeney concluded. "The track has to have the moisture underneath the surface for the cars to go that distance, without it getting too dusty."

Regardless of how the event is run — or when for that matter — the field, led by defending race champion Fred Horn, Marion, Iowa; and current IMCA stock car leader Gordon Blankenship will go after the first-place prize of $1,000.

Horn is scheduled to drive the car normally assigned to Irv Janey, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the defending IMCA stock car champion. Janey received burns in a recent accident at the Michigan International Speedway, competing in a United States Auto Club event.

Sixteen of the current top 20 in the standings have filed entries, including the entire top 15 drivers.

Ferris Collier, a 29-year-old rookie from Lampe, Mo., who has two IMCA wins under his belt, and briefly held the point lead a week ago, has entered.

Other standout drivers in the field include Mike Derr, Keokuk, Iowa, winner of the last week's two IMCA stock events here and at Des Moines, Iowa; Vern Mondry, Lake Elmo, Minn.; Larry Lynch, Grand Prairie, Tex.; Gerry Harrison, Topeka, Kan.; and Jerry Wichman, Kansas City.

Time trials are scheduled to get underway at 1 p.m., with the 101-mile feature starting at 2:30 p.m.

Saturday night, the same field of cars will compete in a series of short sprint-type races under the lights on the half-mile track. Advance tickets are still available for both programs at the State Fair ticket center.

$20,795 to futurity winner

Quarter horses go for rich purse Saturday morning

The biggest single payoff of the Missouri State Fair will be made Saturday morning in the finals of the quarter horse division.

The winner of the futurity for two-year-olds will pocket the first-place prize of $20,795.

A total purse of nearly $75,000, representing the entry fees and the $20,000 put by the Fair, will be divided among those horses that made it to the final and the two consolation races.

Almost $31,000, $10,000 of which has been posted by the Fair, will be at stake in the derby division for three-year-olds.

A consolation race in the derby division is also on the schedule.

The winner of the derby final is assured of $9,302.

The fastest 10 horses in last week's futurity trials will make up futurity final. Only 25-hundredths of a second separates the fastest and slowest horses in the race. Hasty Mover, owned by Leopoldo Lopez of Laredo, Tex., turned in the fastest time in the qualifying races of :20.30. The DeWitt Brothers' entry of Up Early, out of Fort Smith, Ark., is the slowest at :20.55.

One Missouri horse, owned by Steve Goodwin, Festus, is in the 10-horse field. Dial Charger turned in the third-fastest time last week at :20.44. Also at :20.44 is Bar Pan Yogi, owned John Koch of Paris, Ark.

Rounding out the top five qualifiers will be Miss Jennie Royal, which timed in only two-hundredths of a second off the pace set by Hasty Mover, and Burbank Bell Boy (:20.46). Miss Jennie Royal is owned by Cyle Martin, Fairland, Okla.; Jimmy Winkle and John Shald are the owners of Burbank Bell Boy.

The balance of the futurity field is: Jet County, owned by Bill McLaughlin of Springdale, Ark. (:20.47); New Moon Bug, owned by Tom Holbrook of Lindsay, Okla. (:20.49); Stay Out Front, owned by W. E. Burrows of Ada, Okla. (:20.53); and Tommy Creager's Suwanee Dale, out of Pawnee, Okla. (:20.54).

Like the futurity, only :00.25 separates the first and 10th entries in the derby.

Na Na Hey Hey (:20.36) was the fastest qualifier. The horse is owned by Donald O'Brien of Pineville, Mo.

The slowest qualifier for the derby came in at :20.61, Top Air. The entry is owned by Harlow and Munkes of Emporia, Kan.

The quarterhorse races will get underway at 7 a.m.

Floorsweep posts repeat win at the Mo. State Fair

Floorsweep, a heat winner here a year ago, repeated for owner Alva Tipton of Fillmore, Mo., in Thursday's pace for non-winners of $5,000 in the Missouri State Fair's harness racing program.

Floorsweep brought owner-driven Tipton nearly $640, winning the first heat and pacing home with a runner-up finish in the second heat.

At the 1972 Missouri State Fair, Floorsweep captured a heat in the two-year-old pace.

The three-year-old chestnut gelding went the mile distance in 2:04 and three-fifths in winning the opening heat, finishing ahead of Adios Eric, Richland, Iowa; and So Sassy, another Iowa entry from Corydon.

Iowa Maid, owned and driven by David Hendrickson of Early, Iowa, won the second heat. Iowa Maid placed fourth in the opening heat.

Floorsweep was second, while Beautiful Star, owned by Royce Carey and Robert Stapp of Columbus Junction, Iowa, and the ninth-place finisher in the opening heat, ran third in the final heat.

Peggy R. Mite, a three-year-old bay mare, owned and driven by Raymond Payne, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, won her elimination heat as well as the final in the trot for non-winners of $1,000. Jolly Jo C, a four-year-old mare with five wins coming into Thursday's program, won the other elimination heat, and placed second in the final.

Third in the final was won by Ben, an entry by Bob D. Feltus of Allison, Iowa.

Dean Hill, owned by Kermit L. Hinshaw of Richland, Iowa, wired up a win starting from the No. 1 post position in the final heat of the pace for non-winners of $1,000, coming home with first-place money, ahead of Al's Baby.

Both were elimination heat winners.

Winning time in the final was 2:04 and one-fifth.

In the miniature harness racing division, Knox On, a trophy winner during Wednesday's racing program, posted back-to-back heat wins in an open race. Knox On is owned and driven by Jack Freeman of Ashland, Mo.

Red out of the Babe Shultz stable of Douds, Iowa, won the trophy and first-place money in the 1:50-1:57 division. Red won the opening heat, when Broadway's Gayette was disqualified from running out of the time barrier.

Alaska teams still alive in NBC play

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Mike Gatlin singled home Tim Corcoran with the winning run in the 12th inning as Anchorage, Alaska, eliminated Worthington, Ohio, 4-3 in the National Baseball Congress Tournament.

The game started late Thursday and finished at 1:30 a.m. Friday.

Earlier, Fairbanks, Alaska, edged Eureka, Calif., 5-4, and Grand Rapids, Mich., eliminated Wichita Bowers 9-1.

Anchorage's Al Arthur held Worthington to four singles through eight innings, then Dave Frost shut the Ohioans out without a hit the last four innings.

Smith not expected to start for Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis football Cardinals are winding up preparations for their preseason game against the New York Jets here Saturday night.

Head Coach Don Coryell put the team through an afternoon session Thursday, drilling on passing and pass protection.

Coryell said tight end Jackie Smith, who has not participated in either of the National Football League team's preseason games because of a pulled hamstring muscle, will probably not be in the starting lineup against the Jets.

Meanwhile, Joe Sullivan, operations director for the Cardinals, said top draft choice Dave Butz and the team are still far apart in contract negotiations. "It's basically a matter of his demands against what we're able to pay," said Sullivan in respect to the 6-foot-7, 280-pound Butz.

Butz, who was a star tackle at Purdue and was selected top defensive player in last winter's East-West Shrine game, is believed to be negotiating for a multiyear contract which would be negotiable at the end of each season.

Pre-season outlook in Dallas is good

Cowboys should weather talent loss

DALLAS (AP) — Retirement and off-season unrest shook the Dallas Cowboys like an earthquake, but there's every evidence unflappable Coach Tom Landry will have all the pieces in place for an unprecedented eighth consecutive trip to the National Football League playoffs.

The Cowboys lost a staggering 65 years in NFL experience with the exit of seven key players off the Super Bowl VI champions—tight end Mike Ditka, linebacker Chuck Howley, defensive end George Andrie, running back Dan Reeves, receiver Lance Alworth, defensive back Herb Adderley and center Dave Manders.

The Cowboys also led the league in threatened retirements with defensive tackle Bob Lilly, quarterback Craig Morton, linebacker Lee Roy Jordan and others unhappy for one reason or another in hassles with Dallas management.

Yet out of this storm of discontent, Lilly said he had found a "new spirit" on the team—"something we didn't have last year."

To prove he was right, the Cowboys went out and destroyed Los Angeles 24-7 in the exhibition opener to show there was still some fire in the boiler.

Despite the retirements, the Cowboys still have talent that has many an NFL front office drooling.

Quarterbacks Roger Staubach and Morton, who are again fighting for the No. 1 job, are among the tops in the league. Fullback Walt Garrison and 1,000-yard rusher Calvin Hill are proven ground-gainers. The offensive line, behind all-pros Rayfield Wright and John Noland, is among the finest.

If the Cowboys have an offensive weakness, it might be at receiver—but don't count on it. Bob Hayes caught only 15 passes last year but could be in the best shape of his career because of extensive work in professional track during the off-season.

Otto Stowe, Paul Warfield's backup man at Miami, was obtained in a trade for Ron Sellers and has been nothing short of eye-popping in the early going. The No. 1 draft pick, tight end Billy Joe Dupree of Michigan State, also hasn't disappointed.

On defense, Lilly says he is healthy. When the giant tackle says that, it can be a long autumn for opposing quarterbacks. Lilly was plagued by injuries during the 10-4 Cowboy season last year and the pass rush suffered.

Jethro Pugh is the other Cowboy defensive tackle, with Bill Gregory pushing defensive ends Pat Toomay and Larry Cole hard.

At linebacker, five-year veteran D.D. Lewis appears ready to step into Howley's shoes. There's a sneaking hunch that Landry can always get Howley to "unretire" from his dry cleaning business should Lewis fail to produce. Veterans Lee Roy Jordan and Dave Edwards fill out the linebacking trio.

NEWPORT, R.I. — Top-seeded Margaret Court of Australia, the defending champion, overwhelmed Brenda Kirk of South Africa 6-2, 6-2 in grass courts competition on the Newport stop of the Women's Pro Tennis tour.

Three deadlocked for tourney lead

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Dave Eichelberger and Dave Stockton are enthusiastically looking for a spot in the U.S. Professional Match Play Championship, and Buddy Allin will take one if it comes along.

"Sure I want in the Match Play—the way I'm playing now I can handle 'em," said the slumped Eichelberger after he tied Stockton and Allin Thursday for the first round lead in the $100,000 L&M Open Golf Tournament. All had 67s.

"I'd like to get in it," said Stockton, a former PGA national champion and the current Milwaukee Open title-holder. "I had to qualify last year and won one match. I'd like another crack at it."

"I haven't really thought that much about it," said the skinny, freckle-faced, red-haired Allin. "If I get in fine, great. But it's not do or die. If I look forward to it and don't make it, then there's a let-down."

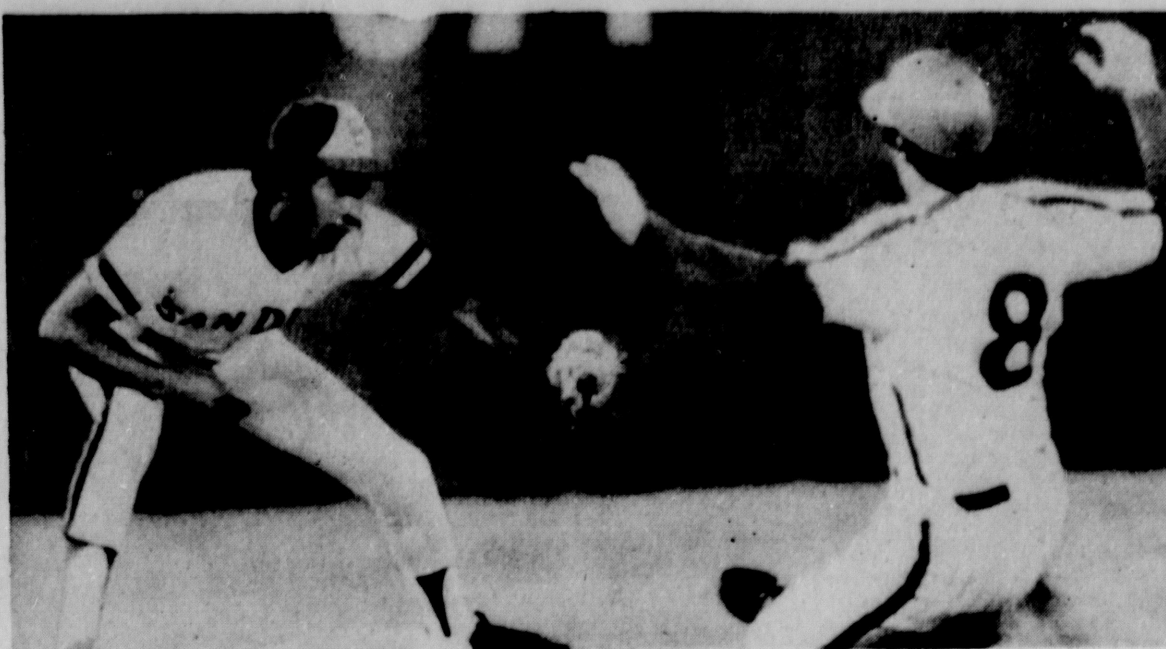

Those three had four-under-par efforts on 6,786 yard MacGregor Downs Country Club course and stamped themselves as prime choices to move into the featured half of pro golf's only doubleheader this weekend.

That's the $150,000 U.S. Professional Match Play championship which will be played Saturday and Sunday on the same MacGregor Downs course.

Eight players—including such big guns as Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Tom Weiskopf—are exempt. The other eight players in the Match Play will be the top eight after 36 holes of the L&M.

While Stockton, Allin and Eichelberger are the top contenders, they're far from secure. Five others were just one stroke back at 68 after the first round of the L&M, and there were five more at 69.

Two of the prime favorites—Lanny Wadkins and Texan Ben Crenshaw—ran afoul of the troublesome, water-guarded 18th hole and were well back.

Unbeaten Vikes, Raiders clash in Oakland, Calif.

By HOWARD SMITH . . . Associated Press Sports Writer

The Minnesota Vikings resume their search for a No. 1 quarterback Saturday at Berkeley, Calif. against the Oakland Raiders in a battle of unbeaten National Football League clubs.

Francis Tarkenton, the incumbent, and Bob Berry, the challenger, have been fighting it out for the right to lead the Purple Gang this season. Statistically it looks like a draw so far.

Tarkenton has completed 18 of 28 passes for 169 yards in Minnesota's two victories while Berry has hit on 19 of 26 tosses for 224 yards. Tarkenton came to the rescue in last week's 13-10 win over Kansas City, rallying the Vikes in the fourth quarter with a 70-yard touchdown drive capped by a 19-yard pass to John Gilliam to tie the score.

Fred Cox's 20-yard field goal with just over one minute to play won it for Minnesota.

Tarkenton will probably start against the Raiders who have their own quarterbacking follies going. Daryle Lamonica made a brief appearance against Los Angeles last week, completing three of four passes, including a six-yard scoring aerial to Bob Moore.

Lamonica then retired while Ken Stabler and Don Milan split the duties behind center in the Raiders' 16-3 win. George Blanda, now 45, doesn't do much quarterbacking these days but he still kicks field goals and connected from 36.17 and 41 yards against the Rams.

This will be the first meeting ever between Minnesota and Oakland, and will serve as a preview of their season-opening battle Sept. 16.

Cincinnati plays at Detroit and Los Angeles visits Miami in games tonight.

Saturday night Baltimore is at Washington, Atlanta faces Cleveland in Knoxville, Tenn., New England visits New Orleans, San Diego entertains Philadelphia and the New York Jets are in St. Louis. Sunday afternoon Chicago is at Buffalo, Denver at San Francisco and Pittsburgh at the New York Giants.

The weekend schedule ends Sunday night when Green Bay visits Kansas City.

Sluggishness doesn't bother coaching staff at Missouri

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The three-day period of grace is over for most Big Eight Conference football players. They are wearing pads now and the hitting has begun.

The Missouri Tigers seemed a little sluggish Thursday, but Coach Al Onofrio had this explanation: "They just look slower because they had pads on."

Two Tigers, Don Owens and Chris Hoskins, were on the injury list and were doubtful for today's two practice sessions. Onofrio plans a controlled scrimmage Saturday.

At Lawrence, the Kansas Jayhawks looked effective at passing, with David Jaynes throwing to Bruce Adams, but the ground game was marred by mistakes and fumbles. Nobody gained more than five yards at a time. Coach Don Fambrough said he really had expected more mistakes.

Kansas State's workout was described by Coach Vince Gibson as hectic. "There was too much confusion, with registration this morning," he said. Gibson liked the work of quarterback Steve Grogan and defensive tackles Bill Crosby and Hal Batdorf.

Coach Eddie Crowder sent his 101 candidates at Colorado on a mile run for their first test. Jeff Kensing, defensive back from Loveland, led the pack in 4 minutes 41 seconds. Crowder said the squad was in the best condition of any in his 10 years at Colorado.

Nebraska staged a 30-minute contact session. During the scrimmage the first team of

NHL may change policy on juniors

TORONTO (AP) — The National Hockey League will not merge with the World Hockey Association and will battle with the new league to sign top junior players.

The NHL board of governors decided at a closed meeting Thursday they will not stand by and watch the WHA sign under-age juniors; they will change their policy if necessary.

In a statement following the meeting, the NHL said: "Our great interest is to preserve the structure of amateur hockey and to sign players only of eligible age."

"But if the only alternative is a plan whereby our teams are given authority to negotiate with under-age juniors, then we will be prepared to follow that course."

Medalist Hollowell into quarterfinals

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bruce Hollowell of Springfield, Mo., medalist in the 66th Annual Missouri men's Amateur Golf Championship Tournament, has won his way into the quarterfinals of match play.

Hollowell carded rounds of 70-72 for medal honors. He downed Bob Cochran, St. Louis, 5-4 in second round match play Thursday after beating Payne Stewart of Springfield, 4 and 3 in the first round.

Hollowell is slated to meet Tom Tessary, of Granite City, Ill., today. Tessary defeated Bob Enger, Kansas City, 1-up in 22 holes in the first round Thursday and then beat Dale Kutz, another Kansas Citian, 2 and 1 in the afternoon round.

Charles Morgan, St. Louis, beat defending champion Don Bliss, St. Louis, in first round play Thursday, 3 and 2, but was defeated by Luther Godwin, Poplar Bluff, 5 and 4, in the second. Godwin will meet Robert Mason, St. Louis, in the quarterfinals.

Mason won Thursday over Byron Connell, Jackson, Mo., 1-up in the first round and beat Paul Hooser, Jefferson City, 3 and 2 in the afternoon.

Bill Stewart, Springfield, winner over Ron Brewer, St. Louis, 2 and 1 in the first round, and over Spenny Sappington, St. Louis, 1 up in 20 holes in the second, will play today against Peter Beardsley, St. Louis, winner over Jody DeLong, Jefferson City, 2-up and James Mason, St. Louis, 2 and 1 Thursday.

In the other quarterfinal, A.J. Kroeger, Jefferson City, will meet Dennis Green, St. Louis. Kroeger beat Jim Asey, St. Louis, 6 and 4 in the first round and Steve Adkinson, St. Louis, 4 and 2 in the second. Green defeated Don Placke, St. Louis, 1-up in the morning round, and beat Sid Salomon III, St. Louis, 2 and 1 in the second.

The only area golfer entering Thursday's play, Clinton school teacher Charles Patterson III, was eliminated in the first round of match play by Sappington, 7 and 5.

American cagers seek rematch in U.S., Russia title revenge

MOSCOW (AP) — The American basketball team has revenge on its side and the Russians have the home court advantage, but who has more talent won't be known until today when the two undefeated squads meet in the final of the World University Games tournament.

The game revives the rivalry between the two teams which hit an all-time peak in the Munich Olympics when the Russians handed the U.S. its first basketball defeat ever by one point in a controversial finish. "I have been waiting for one full year to get at the Russians and now it is here," said towering Tom Burleson of North Carolina State, the only member of the ill-fated Munich team who is here. "I am sure we are going to win this time," added Burleson who saw officials give the Russians two extra chances to win the Olympic final while the game's final seconds appeared to have run out. "We have a much better team."

The Russians have six Olympic stars on their team, including four who were starters at Munich.

Although neither team has lost on its way to today's meeting, the Americans have taken a more difficult road. After defeating the Cubans in a game marred by a bottlethrowing attack against them, the Americans just managed to beat Brazil 66-60.

"We had the game with the Cubans hanging on us," said U.S. Coach Ed Badger after the victory over Brazil. "I am sure the boys will be in perfect condition for the final. The game with the Brazilians has put our minds on the Russians."

"We are down to where it counts now."

Meanwhile, the American swimmers are dominating the closing days of the World University Games.

The U.S. four clocked 3:28.61 to edge the Russians in an exciting finish. That is a mere 2.2 seconds off the world mark.

David Johnson of San Diego won the men's 100 meters backstroke in 59.9. Ann Simmons of Long Beach, Calif., took the gold medal in the women's 400 meters freestyle in 4:28.8, with Jill Strong of Tucson, Ariz., second. Irene Arden of Vancouver, led Cathy Carcione of Long Branch, N.J., home in the women's 100 meters butterfly to win the gold in 1:06.0.

Cuba apologizes to U. S.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Cubans said they were sorry and got off — except for a mild reprimand — for attacking their American rivals in a World University Games basketball contest Wednesday.

"We were at fault — we are sorry," Ernesto Diaz, the Cuban head coach, told the technical committee after the brawl.

"When we play basketball, we are accustomed to being treated roughly. We are shot at. We are stabbed. We have bottles thrown at us."

"When something happens on the floor, our reaction is to pick up objects to protect ourselves. Such was our reaction this time."

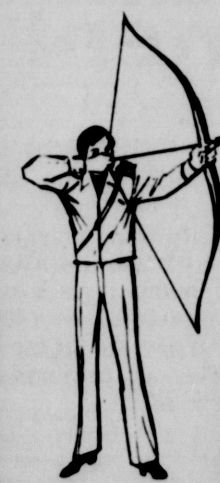

With less than two minutes left in the game, won by the United States, 98-76, the Cuban team rushed off the bench during a scramble for the ball and started swinging punches, bottles and even chairs at the Americans.

Director moving ahead

EDITOR'S NOTE — Don Siegel made mostly B films during his 25 years as a director. European audiences loved them but Hollywood was not too impressed. Now Hollywood, too, is interested in the action-packed films and Siegel likes the feeling of moving ahead at 60.

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — "In America, they consider a film director's work on the basis of (1) Who's in the picture? and (2) How much did it cost? Here, they're only interested in content."

Don Siegel was explaining why he was embraced years ago by French and English critics as a rare innovator of the action film, while he has risen only recently to eminence in the United States.

The rough-hewn director is filming his first English-made movie, "Drabble," a spy chase starring Michael Caine for Zanuck-Brown productions and Universal. When informed that the British film Institute was planning a retrospective on his film, his response was characteristic: "Where were you when I needed you?"

Siegel is a curiosity among American directors. He has been making films since 1946, but most of his time was spent in making B pictures like "Riot in Cell Block 11" and "Invasion of the Body Snatchers." European critics hailed such films, but Hollywood paid little heed to Siegel until he started making box-office hits like "Coogan's Bluff" and "Dirty Harry" with Clint Eastwood.

He's not bitter about the long period of neglect.

"It's fun to be making it now," commented Siegel, 60. "I like being on the way up instead of on the way down. I know too many directors who made it in the 30s and 40s and can't get a job now."

Siegel was shooting a scene with Caine and British actress Janet Suzman in a compact London apartment. Despite the close quarters and technical problems, the director kept production moving along, in keeping with his B-picture training.

The start of the film was not so promising. In the first three days, everything went wrong.

from misused explosions to model airplanes that wouldn't fly. Siegel said he suspected the fault lay with himself — "maybe they shouldn't send senile American directors to England."

He added: "But then I realized the old saw about one bad apple spoiling the barrel. I had hired a bad special effects man. I fired him, and everything has been okay since then."

Siegel was relaxing between shots with a beer. He was also learning the differences between American and English crews.

"The crews here are efficient; they know their jobs. But there are divisions of duty that are perplexing. For instance, the property master is an integral part of our system. But I find that in England the assistant art director is responsible for moving a chair."

"The English crews have more democracy. At 5 o'clock, they take a vote on the director's request to work overtime after 6. In America, you never ask the crew if they want to work overtime. You just tell them."

Boom town has little excitement

EDITOR'S NOTE: The desolate moonscape of the surrounding Egyptian desert stretches far away. From a helicopter you can see Mt. Sinai where Moses delivered the word of God. And here is a transient village on the sands, serviced by eight boats, 50 vehicles and four planes. Its HAIL TSON TO BE IS OFFSHORE. FIELD OF GREAT PROMISE.

By C.C. MINICLIER
Associated Press Writer
RAS SHUKHEIR, Egypt (AP) — If you like your boom towns with a little raw and racy excitement, this oil town hard on the shore of the Red Sea isn't the place.

There are no women, no vegetation, not even a market place or a common saloon. A night on the town comes to two cold beers and a movie.

The reason for Ras Shukheir's existence is lost in the mists of off shore. It is a huge oil field, opened just before the war with Israel in 1967, a lucky piece of timing since the Israelis gobbled up another major Egyptian field when they swept across the Sinai to victory.

Two years after oil was discovered Ras Shukheir was a full blown town, a sprawling warehouse, two-story villas, its own squash court, everything needed to operate the Morgan oil field. But little else.

A FINED ENDING
BERLIN (AP) — The city government cautioned recently that West Berlin is not the French Riviera and that women must stop going topless at the swimming pools and lakes. Those who persist will be fined up to $65.

There is no field in the conventional sense. "And there is no Mr. Morgan," field superintendent Mahmoud Ibrahim Al-lam patiently explains to visitors. The word "Morgan" comes from some local coral.

Located 18 miles offshore, it was discovered by American oil men and it is Egypt's major oil source, pumping 403 million barrels since it opened.

It is the 16th largest known underwater field in the world. A new area was opened recently and is expected to produce 100,000 barrels a day by the end of the year, Allam says.

Visitors to the off shore facilities are surprised to learn they are closer to Israeli-occupied Sinai—only five miles—than to Ras Shukheir.

Not visible from here in the morning mists, the field is clearly visible at night from both sides of the Gulf of Suez, marked by two giant burn-off flames, consuming some 250 million cubic feet of unwanted natural gas daily.

From an approaching helicopter one can see in the distance Mt. Sinai, where Moses is said to have received the Ten Commandments.

Although the oil was discovered by the American Oil Co., AMOCO, there are only five Americans on the 370-man payroll here. The oil is produced by the Gulf of Suez Petroleum Co., jointly owned by AMOCO and EGPCO, the state run Egyptian General Petroleum Corp.

"Oil is good for everybody and I expect there is a lot more oil in the gulf," says process supervisor Sabry Mohamed el Sherif, 29, who started work here two days before the field opened.

Oil from Morgan is shipped to Japan, Brazil, the United States, England, Spain and Italy.

A million barrels were shipped to the United States in one recent month.

The high salaries and quiet, open spaces of the desert and sea are given by most employees as reasons for working in a community without women, or even vegetation.

There are no regular holidays for Moslems or Christians. Each man works 12 days and then takes the company plane or bus 285 miles northwest across the desert to Cairo for nine days off.

The only money spent here by employees is for a beer or two in the evening. Nothing stronger is sold.

Asked how he felt about being away from his wife so much, a production engineer, Ibrahim el Zawahry, 32, here six years, said, "That's fine, we need the money."

The loneliest men are probably those on the offshore platforms, working 75 to 120 feet above the rolling seas. The metal walkways are slick with oil and salt spray and the roar of machinery and rush of gas through pipes prevents any coherent conversation, except in the near sound-proof Porta-Kamp units from Houston, Tex. These contain an office, refrigerator, sink, two-way radio, toilet and repair room.

The biggest platform, valued at $20 million, is manned by a three-man crew of engineers, as are the other inhabited platforms. One engineer is always off duty and another is ashore sleeping, leaving one on board on a 12-hour shift before the helicopter brings out his replacement and takes him in for some hot food, a shower and

American star makes good in London

EDITOR'S NOTE — Of course, Yankee Doodle went to town and stuck a feather in his cap. But a sultry gal from Cleveland, Ohio, came to London town and found her style—as sensuous as a snake in the mating season, a jazzed-up nightingale. Meet Brenda Arnau, who did Yankee Doodle Dandy one better. h

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer
LONDON (AP) — Sleek Brenda Arnau is taking sudden London glory with a dash or two of cool.

As the girl from Cleveland, Ohio, puts it: "I don't quite believe what's been happening," despite a bit of psychic premonition.

Also she doesn't intend to hurry too soon to homeland opportunity.

"The ideal thing is to make a definite statement here," she looks up through heavy eyelids, "then go to America. If I went now I think I would have to struggle all over."

Miss Arnau erupted into the theatrical firmament here a few weeks ago in "Two Gentlemen of Verona," that perky musical shakeup of Shakespeare which previously won Broadway prizes.

"This," she asserts, "is the first time since I began seven years ago that I've not been just winging it."

Tete-a-tete with the svelte 28-year-old Gemini quickly establishes that her prior global jaunts were mostly a triumph of instinct over training, of jaunty brashness over ignorance.

Always, of course, were those swivel hips and a voice of sultry charm.

London's critics, usually a hardnosed crew about Yankee invaders, indulged in an adjective orgy to describe her performance as Sylvia, the musical's fought-over heroine.

Among the press comments were: "She can dance like a dervish, then sing with a contemptuous hauteur," "Sky-scraper legs and a torso that is an undulating incitement to lechery," "Moving as sensually as a snake in the mating season, singing like a jazzed-up nightingale, dusky Brenda Arnau is the most exciting new star of the year."

THAT'S CAPITAL!
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — "The service center industry will spend over $150 million on capital equipment in 1973," R. G. Welch, president of the Steel Service Center Institute told the group's 64th annual meeting.

"Between 1960 and 1970, service centers doubled in size in terms of tonnage of material shipped," says Welch, "and from 1970 through 1972, we have jumped another 50 per cent. This indicates a continuation of high growth through the balance of the decade. The industry currently handles about one-quarter of the metals sold in the U.S. — about $9 billion worth."

It doesn't involve singing the praises of hair spray, chewing gum and all that, either. She's singing her own songs, getting a few TV shots, working a few clubs and promoting her first album.

She's hoping that eventually it'll all fall into place and put her in the ranks of singers like Barbra Streisand, one of her favorites, or Bette Midler, in whose backup group she sang last year.

"I started in commercials, but I've always been singing," said Miss Manchester, whose father is a bassoonist with the New York Metropolitan Opera company. "Our house always has been music."

Next Thursday, she's appearing on ABC-TV in a somewhat less formal setting than the Met. It's a show called "Good Vibrations from Central Park" and she's on the bill with such rock and rhythm and blues acts as Sly and the Family Stone and The Temptations.

It's her first prime-time network TV show, which is a pretty good step forward when you consider that her solo career got underway only last February, when she signed a recording contract with Bell Records.

Miss Manchester, who laughs often and speaks in a low, husky voice, is all of 22. She was born and raised in Fun City and got into the jinglesinging business here at 15. Her first jingle?

"Ah, yes, it was for Copper-tone," she said. "I also was the Morton Salt girl."

Her youth was a bit different from those of most kids. She went to school, but her real classroom was the recording studio, where she worked with such people as jazz trombonist J.J. Johnson and drummer Bob Rosengarden, now the band-leader on ABC's "Dick Cavett Show."

After graduation from New

Toast of town

The latest "Yankee invader" to take London by storm is Cleveland-born Brenda Arnau. She opened there recently in the musical "Two Gentlemen of Verona" and she's already been hailed as "the most exciting new star of the year." She's lived in Europe for several years. Before this success, the highspots in her professional life there have been a hit record, and a part in "Oh, Calcutta!"

(AP)

Such notices just make the damsel aver: "I think I've found my stage being at last in Sylvia. Before that I was loose and changing. Now I know in what direction I have to go."

From age 10, singing at family parties, Brenda has, with a few detours, been a willing victim of applause fever. For a while, somewhere in the teens, she thought about a career as a fashion designer.

"By then, I was a telephone operator in Los Angeles, and I used to draw my clothes ideas on the back of charge pads."

After that she studied to be a hairstylist. To pay for lessons she became a go-go dancer in San Francisco, fibbing about age and experience.

In recounting her adventures, intentional gaps interrupt exact chronology. Brenda has a younger brother, her family name was Burton, but please don't ask about the parents. Her professional name, Arnau, derives from the Arnaut that came with her first marriage. She has a daughter, whom she shields from all publicity. Now her husband is Michael Bastow, a film art director. At their home in Putney she indulges a passion for cookery. Having made up her mind to a career in entertainment, Brenda went job-hunting with a feline intensity to match her 5-foot-10 panther grace.

After a stint with a ritzy coiffure salon in Beverly Hills, Miss Arnau headed for Las Vegas at a friend's urging. At a chorus girl audition, "I went around telling the other girls they might as well leave because I was going to get the job."

"Frank Sinatra Jr. came in during the audition, and I winked at him. By then everyone was watching. I was so green. I was bluffing. They all broke out laughing when I didn't even have a song ready. I thought I was very good. Looking back it was diabolical, unreal."

An agent got her a spot singing in the film version of "Fanny's Rainbow," and she won a spot on Joey Bishop's television series.

"I got a lot of Cinderella publicity out of that," she says. "I realized I was going to be in big trouble if I didn't get some real training."

To the surprise and protest of friends, Miss Arnau headed for the Far East, from Tokyo to Bangkok, became a pin-up girl on the Armed Forces radio.

"I went for three months and stayed a year," Brenda evinces a tinge of somber. She sang in field hospitals, went into the Vietnam war zone.

"After that I couldn't face the thought of returning to America. The experience changed my whole outlook on life."

In 1968 Brenda arrived in Paris, thereafter commuted to London, doing cabaret shows, hoping for the big break.

"It was struggle, struggle, struggle," she says. "But I had a great belief in my mind I was going to make it big. So I always had good gowns and my own arrangements."

"For seven months I couldn't get a job. I decided to try writing my own music and did a song called 'Gonna Spread Love' which turned out to be a record hit and got me an incredible amount of TV work."

During a Playboy Club engagement, she was spotted by Kenneth Tynan and hired for the nudie extravaganza, "Oh, Calcutta!" She stayed another seven months, garnering more "incredible publicity."

As for performing naked—"It didn't bother me. It is all just the state of your own mind. And it taught me body control."

During the run, Miss Arnau took voice lessons for the first time in her life and went off on more travels that took her from Czechoslovakia to Australia. Returning to London, she heard about the casting for "Verona," survived four auditions and took an eight-week crash course in dancing.

"I've been back to the United States several times through the years, but no one ever asked me to work there."

The night before the London premiere, she gravely reports, "I dreamed the show had opened, that it was a success, and I could even see the reviews." Miss Arnau feels "I have a certain amount of psychic power. I analyze hand-writings too."

Besides the stage part, Miss Arnau currently is in the new James Bond movie, "Live and Let Die," carolling the title tune.

Rather than dreaming of a theater career stretching indefinitely ahead, Brenda hopes "to do concerts and have proteges."

Her central ambition is to help other fledgling performers hit the big time.

"To me, the star-struck are limited people. If you are self-ish, something happens to you, it shows. For me, there is no competition among artists. You can't get hung up on your own problems."

"So many big names have helped me along the way, and in my own travels I've seen so much talent that hasn't been recognized."

HE'S JUST CHICKEN

WALKERTON, Ont. (AP) — A Walkerton man won't be eating chicken of any sort for a while.

Robert Bester, winner of the Walkerton world chicken-eating contest, who managed to gulp down about six pounds of fried chicken at Walkerton's Chickenfest, said, "I won't be eating chicken for a long time."

Jingle singer doing solo act

EDITOR'S NOTE — It's a long way from sultan and salt jingles, but Melissa Manchester is singing for herself these days and such a fine sound it is. At 22, she's about to appear on her first prime-time TV show, called appropriately "Good Vibrations From Central Park."

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Melissa Manchester's singing has been heard on several hundred TV commercials, anonymously buried in a chorus of jingle singers. But she started doing a solo act this year.

It doesn't involve singing the praises of hair spray, chewing gum and all that, either. She's singing her own songs, getting a few TV shots, working a few clubs and promoting her first album.

She's hoping that eventually it'll all fall into place and put her in the ranks of singers like Barbra Streisand, one of her favorites, or Bette Midler, in whose backup group she sang last year.

"I started in commercials, but I've always been singing," said Miss Manchester, whose father is a bassoonist with the New York Metropolitan Opera company. "Our house always has been music."

Next Thursday, she's appearing on ABC-TV in a somewhat less formal setting than the Met. It's a show called "Good Vibrations from Central Park" and she's on the bill with such rock and rhythm and blues acts as Sly and the Family Stone and The Temptations.

It's her first prime-time network TV show, which is a pretty good step forward when you consider that her solo career got underway only last February, when she signed a recording contract with Bell Records.

Miss Manchester, who laughs often and speaks in a low, husky voice, is all of 22. She was born and raised in Fun City and got into the jinglesinging business here at 15. Her first jingle?

"Ah, yes, it was for Copper-tone," she said. "I also was the Morton Salt girl."

Her youth was a bit different from those of most kids. She went to school, but her real classroom was the recording studio, where she worked with such people as jazz trombonist J.J. Johnson and drummer Bob Rosengarden, now the band-leader on ABC's "Dick Cavett Show."

After graduation from New York's High School of Performing Arts, she continued doing jingles, as well as demonstration records for songwriters and briefly studied acting at New York University.

"It was there that I really learned now much I disliked acting," she said. "I left after a year."

She went from there to songwriting for a large New York publishing house, while still singing jingles for a living, and squeezed in time for an eight-week songwriting course at NYU.

The instructor was Paul Simon, who with colleague Art Garfunkel had a pretty big hit going then — something called "Bridge Over Troubled Water."

Miss Manchester, whose vocal style has been described as lying somewhere between that of Carole King and Aretha Franklin, was singing at a small West Side club one night when Bette Midler came in.

"We got into talking about vocal coaches," she said. "I knew what she had done as a singer and I told her how much I admired her."

"At the time, she was preparing for a concert appearance at Carnegie Hall, so I said, 'I understand you're singing at Carnegie Hall.' She says yes."

"I said, 'Ahem, harrumph, so when am I singing with you?' She says, 'you want to sing with me?' I said, 'No, I'd like to sing instead of you, but until that time comes I'll sing with you.'"

It led to the formation of the Harlettes, a three-women singing group that backed up Miss Midler on her concert appearances starting in June last year.

Miss Manchester left the group on New Year's Day to strike off on her own, continuing, as she had in her spare time, the long round of knocking on record company doors with tapes of her own songs.

The tapes all had been recorded in professional studios, with full orchestras. She said she paid for it all, with her earnings from jingles.

An independent record producer, Hank Medrus, liked her stuff and steered her toward Bell Records. A contract was signed and she finally made her first album. Now she's working on a second.

And in the interim, she's appeared on two Mike Douglas shows and has a scheduled appearance coming up on NBC's "Midnight Special," music show.

How'd she land that show? "Well, I was appearing at the Troubadour," she said, referring to the Los Angeles club many young performers consider the home of the big break. "The talent coordinator from 'Midnight Special' saw me and she liked me."

"It's incredible," Miss Manchester quietly mused. "You could work your butt off for years and years around the country and you'll never get to as many people in four years as you will in one five-minute TV shot."

She's been lucky and she'll readily admit it. But she also says she wants to take her time building her new career, to have time to grow musically and cope with the pressures of whatever success comes her way.

Would she eventually like to have her own show, something akin to that of Helen Reddy?

"No," she said without a moment's hesitation. "I just want to grow. I have nothing to do for the next 40 years. Just want to keep singing."

FBI committed burglaries at foreign nation embassies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI committed burglaries to steal intelligence information from inside the embassies of foreign nations during the Johnson, Kennedy and Eisenhower administrations, former FBI officials say.

Published documents indicate the break-ins were aimed at getting code books and other cryptographic information. Two former high FBI officials estimated Thursday that fewer than 10 such break-ins took place each year. One source said they went on for 15 to 20 years before being stopped in 1966.

Meanwhile the White House stuck to President Nixon's disputed assertion that FBI break-ins were authorized, widespread and well known during two Democratic administrations.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, speaking in San Clemente, Calif., refused to add any details.

Costs preclude stampede into hog business

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A University of Missouri swine specialist says that although hog prices are at an all-time high other costs will preclude a stampede into hog business or expansion of current operations.

John Rea, the MU hog specialist, says the last five years represent the highest five-year average for hog prices with an average of 22 cents a pound and prices ranging from 16 cents to 32 cents.

More recently hog prices topped 60 cents. However, prices of some hog feeds—like soybeans—have quadrupled in the last year.

Rea said the effect is such that "if the hog price should drop to 40 cents, feeders wouldn't be any better off than when hogs were at 25 cents and the feed price hadn't risen."

Rea says feed costs account for 70 per cent of the total cost of producing pork.

Woman files suit to recover treasure

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A Clovis, N.M., woman is seeking $1 billion damages and the right to enter the White Sands Missile Range to recover a treasure she says she and her former husband discovered 35 years ago.

Ova Noss, 77, contends in a U. S. District Court suit filed Thursday against the federal and state governments and 100 John Does, that she was deprived of her property without due process of law.

She claims rights to a treasure in gold bars and other valuables worth "in excess of $1 billion," which are on the southern New Mexico missile range, the suit said.

It contends the unidentified John Does, who it says are either military personnel stationed at White Sands and Holloman Air Force Base or clients of Boston lawyer F. Lee Bailey, already have removed some of the treasure.

She seeks $26 million from the federal government and $26 million from the John Does.

Mrs. Noss also has submitted a formal request to the Department of the Army for permission to enter the range "for the express and sole purpose of retrieving gold and other valuables."

Kansas City lawyer Phil A. Koury said the department had indicated it would grant a request for Bailey to seek treasure on the range if he would identify his clients and give the location of the gold.

Koury said, "It appears reasonable to assume" that the same stipulations would apply to Mrs. Noss. The petition states, "The Noss family is strongly of the belief that the 292 bars of gold claimed by the clients of Mr. Bailey are part of their original discovery and were moved to another location."

Bailey has said his approximately 50 clients know where $26.5 million in gold is hidden in a cave on the range.

M. E. "Doc" Noss, who was divorced from Mrs. Noss shortly before being shot to death in 1949, said he found in 1937 a cave full of gold bars, old coins and other valuables in the Victorio Peak vicinity on what is now the missile range.

Not enough evidence uncovered for arrests

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The investigation into an alleged conspiracy to kill President Nixon has failed to turn up enough evidence to make arrests, a local source close to the inquiry says.

Investigators could not piece together enough evidence to prosecute the six black militants who were being investigated, the source said.

The source said investigators will now just "ride out" the information they have acquired. The source said those persons who were being investigated will now be regarded as persons of interest to law enforcement officials.

"We'll just be watching them," the source said. The source said no arrests are in the offing.

New Orleans police and federal sources close to the inquiry said it began about a week before Nixon visited New Orleans Monday.

A source said a police informant had told New Orleans police of a meeting between six black militants at which killing Nixon was discussed.

The informant then told police of a subsequent meeting between two of the original six at which a rifle changed hands.

New Orleans police then notified federal agents who advised that the alleged conspirators be arrested and held until at least after Nixon had left New Orleans.

When New Orleans police failed to make any arrests, the Secret Service made an unprecedented public announcement that Nixon should alter his appearance plans by scrapping the open-car motorcade.

Nun is hairdresser

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — Sister Pietro Ryan is a hairdresser and manager of the Hilltop Sculpture Curl Salon. The Roman Catholic nun works in a light green dress and views her chatter with her customers as her way of following her calling in life.

"I see a very deep need for people to listen to people," she said amidst the clippings of her scissors. "I'm freer to listen and be concerned about people."

Sister Pietro is a unique example of "the new nun," using her professional and spiritual training to respond to needs beyond the traditional scope of the convent.

A member of the Sisters of St. Francis, her occupation is the result of a revised training program begun five years ago that allows the women to train for more varied roles in society.

A nun can contract for employment on their own, subject to approval by a personnel board. Her salary goes to the convent and she is given a monthly allowance.

"The traditional picture that people have of sisters is that of the teacher-nurse," explained one member of the St. Francis personnel staff. "It's not that we're leaving that behind. It's important. We just want to follow a greater diversity among our sisters."

About 65 of the 750 members of the Rochester religious community are engaged in activities beyond the traditional education and health care. Some are in social work. Others donate time to public health clinics.

Sister Pietro is the first of her order to go into business. She received her state hairdresser's license after 11 months in a technical school. She has managed the Hilltop Salon for two years.

break-ins by FBI agents. He said these were freelance jobs, undertaken against the department's policy, and unrelated to national security.

He said the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover did ask him several times, shortly after Clark took office in late 1966, for permission to burglarize a foreign mission in New York City to obtain intelligence sought by another intelligence agency. Clark said he denied permission and didn't hear about such matters again.

Nixon's assertion about what took place in the Kennedy and Johnson years came at a news conference Wednesday in which he defended his short-lived approval of a 1970 intelligence plan that authorized burglaries against embassies and domestic radical groups such as the Black Panthers and Weathermen.

He said under Kennedy and Johnson "burglarizing of this type did take place...it was authorized on a very large scale...and it was quite well known."

Although wiretapping of foreign embassies has been an open secret for years, FBI break-ins at foreign embassies didn't surface publicly until recent disclosures related to the 1971 attempt by White House agents to steal Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatric records.

Immediate reductions not likely

NEW YORK (AP) — Several U.S. and foreign airlines agree that immediate trans-Atlantic fare reductions are not likely following a court ruling that current rates are invalid.

A federal appeals court in Washington ruled that the Civil Aeronautics Board did not have the right to simply extend 1972 fares, even though airlines failed to reach a compromise rate schedule.

The International Air Transport Association will begin negotiations on 1974 rates in October. Spokesmen for major airlines said that no new rates are likely before the first of the year.

The 2-1 court decision Wednesday came on a challenge to the CAB rate extension by a Ralph Nader consumer group, which claimed there was almost a "total disregard for the trans-Atlantic passenger."

The CAB argued that the fare extension was necessary to avoid a possible breakdown in air service across the North Atlantic.

Can you still get prime quality for $1.26 a pound?

A pound of Volkswagen isn't cheap compared to other cars. But what you pay for is the quality. Prime quality. Just look at what you get for your money:

13 pounds of paint, some of it in places you can't even see. (So you can leave a Volkswagen out overnight and it won't spoil.)

A watertight, airtight, sealed steel bottom that protects against rocks, rain, rust and rot.

Over 1,000 inspections per one Beetle.

Electronic Diagnosis that tells you what's right and wrong with important parts of your car.

A 1600 cc aluminum-magnesium engine that gets 25* miles to a gallon.

Volkswagen's traditionally high resale value.

Over 22,000 changes and improvements on a car that was well built to begin with.

What with all the care we take in building every single Volkswagen, we'd like to call it a filet mignon of a car. Only one problem. It's too tough.

Few things in life work as well as a Volkswagen.

Ann Landers

Retrieves kite in cocktail gown

Dear Ann Landers: Last night we were invited to a cocktail-dinner party. We were hardly through with our first drink when the doorman rang, and a scruffy little boy told the hostess his kite was on her roof. Without any consideration for her six guests (some with their glasses almost empty), this nut told her husband to get the ladder while she changed to sneakers. He's afraid of heights so he held the ladders while she crawled up on the roof in a cocktail dress and tennis shoes to get the kite.

The whole affair took a good half hour. I thought it was terribly rude, since we had never been in her house before and hardly knew the other guests. She could have told the brat "too bad" or "come back tomorrow."

My husband thought the whole thing was funny and I decided to ask you for your opinion. What do you think? — Miffed In Minneapolis.

Dear Miffed: I think it's beautiful that the hostess would attach that much importance to a little boy's kite. So what if you got high a half hour later than you might have otherwise? I see nothing to complain about.

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest the letter from the cigarette fiend, "Hooked," because I smoked three packs a day for 20 years. Two years ago I knew I no longer enjoyed smoking. It was just a habit to light up after a meal with my cup of coffee, or when I talked on the phone, etc.

When I noticed the deep brown juice that I scraped off my windows as I cleaned them (from cigarette smoke and cooking grease), it made me think. But I just coughed and went on smoking.

Then I read a short story written by a 19-year-old mother who was dying of cancer. She gave a day-by-day account of her suffering and her feelings about never seeing her husband as a middle-aged man or her baby girl as a bride. That got me to thinking some more.

Finally, I got the flu — really bad. I was convinced I had cancer of the throat and I prayed. I promised God, if I didn't have cancer, I'd NEVER smoke again.

Well, I didn't have cancer, but I thank my lucky stars that I was given that warning.

It's going on two years now, and I'm off those damned things for the rest of my life. If "Hooked" wants to keep smoking, I say go ahead and kill yourself! You're a lily-livered idiot with no sense and no backbone.

I'm signing this — Saved And Grateful

Dear S and G: Thanks for the testimonial. What you can do, others can do. And let's hope they will.

Dear Ann Landers: I have always admired your ability to give common sense answers to such a wide spectrum of questions, but you missed the boat when you advised the wife whose husband kept spearing her at night with his toenails. You said, "Tell King Kong to put on socks."

If she would just sit "King Kong" down a couple of times a month and give him a nice, relaxing pedicure, she would find a contented man by her side at night instead of a knife-toed monster, equipped to perform mayhem.

I treat my husband like a king and in return, he treats me like a queen. I realize all men can't be as good as yours and mine, but even a 24-carat clod is bound to be a little nicer if you give him extra-tender, loving care. — Queen Bee In Oroville

Dear Queenie: Not all men will sit still for a pedicure, but every man can put on socks. Thanks for writing.

A. L. Henderson, 94, 315 West 10th, says that he has not missed a Missouri State Fair since the first one was held in 1902, except for the war years of 1943-44 when the Fair wasn't held. As close as Henderson can remember, he came to Sedalia in 1889, worked as a plumber for 67 years and helped prepare the original plumbing for the first Fair. In the above photo, he looks over a painting Thursday at one of the many displays at the Fair.

Walkout suspends all Canadian rail systems

MONTREAL (AP) — Canada's month-long series of regional rail strikes is now a nationwide walkout.

Thursday night's walkout was Canada's first national rail strike since 1966. That one was ended in less than 10 days by back-to-work legislation, and there were demands today for firm government action. But Labor Minister John Munro gave no indication of what he might do.

The 11 Canadian railways' 56,000 non-operating workers have been staging 48-hour strikes in succession across the country since July 26 to press their demand for higher wages. After two weeks of negotiations with Judge Alan B. Gold as mediator, the unions ordered all their members off the job at supertime Thursday and said the strike would last indefinitely.

The strike idled more than 100,000 employees of Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Rail, the two largest of the 11 lines.

There was little immediate effect on train travelers since transcontinental passenger service has been suspended since the start of the regional strikes, and most commuters have made alternate arrangements because of the recurring local stoppages. But thousands of tourists were stranded on Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island because the strike affected ferries operated by the railroad companies.

Air Canada announced it would accept no more freight for 24 hours in Toronto because of the backlog created by the rail strike.

Conversion of aircraft said 'not out of line'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pentagon spokesman says it was "not out of line" for an Air Force General to spend a reported $670,000 of public funds to convert a Boeing C15A into a plush executive jet complete with two divans that fold down into beds.

The spokesman commented Thursday after Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., released figures he said he received from the General Accounting Office.

Independence entry wins in rose show

Ernie Preuitt, Independence, had the best hybrid tea rose in the Missouri State Fair's floriculture show Thursday, and also won the "best three hybrid tea roses" category.

Dean and Betty Reed, Windsor, received two "best in the show" ribbons for their entry in the miniature rose class. The best grandiflora ribbon went to Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Brummet, Sedalia, for their "Polynesian Sunset," which also won the sweepstakes award.

The best arrangement prize went to Mrs. Lewis Smith, Ottumwa, who also won the best arrangement sweepstakes in the show.

The Brummetts and Mrs. Smith also won several other awards during the show, it was reported by Fair officials.

Proxmire requested the GAO report after accusing Gen. Jack Catton, head of the Air Force Logistics Command, of spending $430,000 to refurbish the jet.

The congressional agency came up with the larger figure and confirmed Proxmire's contention that the money was spent on such things as a $4,986 sink and cabinet and three bathrooms which cost $2,460.

Catton was unavailable for comment and Col. A.G. Lynn, information director for the logistics command, said, "Until we get the charges and the report, it would be impossible for him to say anything."

The Pentagon spokesman said the Air Force conducted its own investigation and found nothing wrong with the expenditures.

"The modification of the aircraft is not out of line for aircraft used for VIPs, military and civilian," he said.

He said the Air Force could not agree or disagree with the GAO's figures, since renovation of the aircraft was still under way at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio.

Lynn, however, said the airplane, a military version of Boeing's 707, was on a business trip in the Far East.

Woman past first hurdle for parole

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Caril Ann Fugate, sentenced at age 15 to a life term for murder, Friday crossed the first hurdle on a route which could lead to her release from the York Women's Reformatory.

The three-member State Parole Board on a majority vote recommended to the State Pardon Board that it commute her sentence to a definite term of years, a necessary preliminary to parole.

"It is our judgment," said Board Chairman John Greenholtz, "that society's purpose has been served and Miss Fugate cannot benefit by further imprisonment and is an acceptable risk for parole consideration."

The action followed a public hearing two days earlier at which 31 witnesses, including Nebraska's corrections director, Victor Walker, supported the release bid and five witnesses, including mothers of the two slaying victims, opposed it.

Miss Fugate, now 30 but 14 at the time, accompanied her boy friend Charles Starkweather, 19, on a killing rampage in the Lincoln area. Eleven slayings were attributed to Starkweather and he was executed in the state's electric chair in 1959.

Miss Fugate was convicted of first degree murder for aiding and abetting Starkweather and the jury prescribed a life sentence.

Next step in the release route for Miss Fugate will be in the hands of the Pardon Board, which includes Gov. J. James Exon, Secretary of State Allen Beermann and Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer.

Attendance drop is noted at Fair

A packed grandstand viewed a masterful performance by Bob Hope, who provided a fitting climax for Thursday, recognized as Sedalia, St. Louis and Kansas City day at the Missouri State Fair.

Although attendance figures for Thursday were not available, a comparison of actual paid attendance figures for the current Fair and last year's exposition revealed that, as of Wednesday, 166,082 persons attended the 1973 Fair, a drop of 19,904 from last year's figures covering the same time span.

The decrease pertains to actual paid gate attendance. An earlier practice employed by former State Fair Secretary Wilbert Askew of padding paid gate attendance by 5,000 plus 15 per cent of the paid attendance is not being used this year, according to Secretary Ron Jones, but that change in policy does not alter the fact that fewer people are coming to the Fair this year.

Askew said he added 5,000 to daily attendance to count season ticket holders and Fair employees. The 15 per cent figure represented all children under six who were not charged admission.

Commenting on the attendance decline Thursday morning, Jones indicated he wasn't as worried about the attendance statistics as he was in providing "the best Fair possible for every person every day."

Jones indicated he believed the decline in Fair attendance doesn't reflect disinterest in the Fair itself but, rather, the reluctance of an increasing number of Americans to travel as much this summer because of gasoline shortages and generally tighter money.

"I talked recently with a man with the Colorado Tourism Department and he said vacationing attendance in the state was down 30 per cent," Jones said. "So, I guess it's pretty much of a national thing and not tied only to the Fair."

Another factor cited by Jones as contributing to the attendance drop was the fact that the Ike and Tina Turner show did not draw as large a crowd as was anticipated.

"We had a lot more attend the Jackson Five concert last year than attended the Ike and Tina Turner Show this year," Jones said. "They seem to draw better in the nightclub atmosphere rather than at fairs."

It was learned Thursday that the grand champion bacon, purchased for $500 at the ham breakfast Wednesday and given to Fair Secretary Ron Jones, was bought by Sedalia Bank & Trust Co. The bacon was presented to Jones by bank board chairman Jason Ott, Kansas City.

Clark attracted a near-capacity crowd of country-music lovers and delighted them with a pleasing blend of comedy, singing and guitar virtuosity.

In order to control the grandstand seating situation, the gates were locked 45 minutes before the show was scheduled to begin. Jones said he did this because of the past Fair policy of letting people enter and then turn them away, if necessary, at the stairs. He said this could prove dangerous in an emergency situation.

One member of his audience especially delighted to see her "favorite singer" was Mrs. Mattie Edmonston, of Sedalia, who is 103 years old. Following his performance, Clark welcomed her on stage and recognized her as his "oldest fan."

In horse racing activities Wednesday, "Beautiful Beau," a horse owned by Jeffie D. Specker, Mayview, escaped serious injury and crossed the finish line after he collapsed on the race track during harness competition. Another horse owned by Specker beat seven rivals to win the Governor's Trophy and $1,500 in the Missouri-owned horse race. The trophy is awarded alternately each year to the best Missouri-owned pacer or trotter.

In Thursday activity, Hazel D. Davis, Elsberry, won a Hereford heifer in a raffle sponsored by the Missouri Junior Hereford Association. "Lady Aston 39" was donated to the raffle by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Robbins, Hopkins.

Kelly and Julie Kisse, Springfield, showed the Grand and Reserve Champion Hereford Females Thursday, while a two-year-old bull from the B Bar S Ranch, Pella, Iowa, became Grand Champion Hereford Bull.

In other Thursday results, the team of Conklin and Frazer, Columbia, won a total of seven awards at the mules-in-hand competition. The two men claimed both the Grand Champion Mule and the Reserve Champion honors. Other awards included best mule colt, and best one-year-old male mule.

W.C. Read, Pleasanton, Kan., showed top entries in four divisions of the mule competition. Raymond Williams, El

Public's economic discontent big Nixon administration worry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is worried that Americans are growing increasingly unhappy with the economy, despite growing prosperity, the administration's top economic adviser said Thursday.

"It is not good to have all the people in the country unhappy," said Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

He said recent polls show that the number of Americans who feel they are better off than a year before declined to 33 per cent this year from 45 per cent last year.

And he said the poll, made or conducted by the University of Michigan's Survey and Research Center, showed that the number of Americans who felt they were worse off increased from 20 to 29 per cent.

This "increase in the feeling of discontent" has occurred despite an increase of five per cent in real disposable personal income during the period, Stein said.

In another economic development, the Atlantic Richfield Co. (Arco) was directed by the Cost of Living Council to send representatives to Washington Monday to explain their justification for recent increases in prices of gasoline and home heating oil.

The company raised its wholesale prices by two cents a gallon Aug. 20, an increase that would cause a rise of one cent in the retail price of heating oil and gasoline.

The council's challenge to Arco to justify the increases could be its first major enforcement action under the new Phase 4 anti-inflation program.

At a briefing with newsmen, Stein also said that the rate of inflation next year would be "substantially below" the eight per cent of inflation so far in the current year.

And he said he thought the rate of food price increases would be below the 18 to 20 per cent rate of increase this year. But he was skeptical of a prediction by Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz that it might be five per cent or less.

Director John T. Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council also indicated he questioned the Butz estimate, saying it seemed like "an iffy number to me."

Stein, whose own forecasts of economic performance have not been realized so far this year, has declined to make any new forecasts of his own.

In January, the Council of Economic Advisors, headed by Stein, forecast a 3 per cent rate of inflation for the year and a rate of 2.5 per cent by year's end.

During the period of sharply rising food prices earlier this year, Stein and other administration economists forecast a decline in the rate of increase after mid-year, but the decline failed to materialize, prompting the administration's June 13 price freeze.

Asked why Americans felt they were worse off, Stein said they were probably noticing only rising prices and overlooking the fact that their income has risen faster.

"I'm one of the cattle rustlers."

"I didn't know the show was that bad."

"I became more of an owl."

Comedy common commodity for Hope

BY MARY LOU VOSSMEYER
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

After a 20-minute delay Thursday, the great white Hope of American comedians entered a Ramada Inn banquet room for a press conference before his grandstand performance at the Missouri State Fair.

Bob Hope strolled to the front of the room smiling and humming to himself. Amid photographers' flashes and glaring TV camera lights, the king of comedy seemed to exude an air of tranquility and congeniality.

When Hope was asked why he decided to appear at the Missouri State Fair, he answered curtly, "Money," but quickly added that he has played several fairs and many colleges.

"I do make a lot of personal appearances," he said. "It's something I enjoy doing...I enjoy contact with live audiences."

Hope expressed his opinion on Henry Kissinger's appointment to Secretary of State by saying "Well, he's had enough practice...actually, F.D.R. had a guy named Harry Hopkins who used to do that kind of stuff off the cuff and it worked pretty well for him."

One reporter asked Hope if he supported the recent meat boycott.

"I'm one of the cattle rustlers," he replied.

He added that he really is concerned about the problem of cattle rustling and said he felt the meat boycott "didn't hurt because it brings our problems to light."

Hope told reporters that when the Vietnam war began he was called a Hawk, along with a lot of other brilliant men. He added that as the war dragged on "I became more of an owl."

Hope also said that if the war had been handled in the right manner "we would have been out eight years ago and saved some half million lives...but I don't know who else could have ended the war besides the administration."

Regarding his reputation as a Hawk, Hope mentioned that one young man in a San Francisco airport approached him and asked when he was going to stop the killing.

"I didn't know the show was that bad," Hope laughed in reply.

In answer to a question about his present opinion of President Nixon, Hope commended Nixon for ending the war, opening communications with China and "getting a big part of the 'enemy' thing out of the way."

Hope added that politics today are no different than 15 or 20 years ago. "It's all happened before...every administration has its scandal, for example, in England it's not Watergate, but waterbed," he joked.

In response to a question about the recent Supreme Court ruling on the censorship of X rated movies, Hope said he felt it definitely would change the content of future movies.

"I never dreamed 20 years ago that they'd show stag films for the whole family. People don't want their children to see these movies...I can't see where any of these kinds of films can help anyone."

When asked to what he attributes the success of his long marriage, when Hollywood marriages are notorious for being short, Hope replied, "travel...besides my wife likes to golf...she travels with me...and we have a lot of mutual likes and dislikes."

One newsman asked Hope if he had any plans for retirement. Hope displayed his talent for creating humor out of just about any topic by saying, "No...well, I did this morning when I tried to get up."

General favorable reaction to selection of Kissinger

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reaction to the nomination of Henry A. Kissinger as secretary of State continued generally favorable Thursday both in this country and abroad.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said, however, Kissinger would run into difficulties if questions arise about his additional role as a presidential adviser.

"If there is any question about his additional work in the White House giving him executive privilege, a position he has taken in the past, I do not believe the committee will confirm him," Symington said.

Another committee member, Sen. Frank

Church, D-Idaho, predicted no difficulty in confirming Kissinger and said "the fact is that Kissinger has been the major architect of our foreign policy during the Nixon years. His installation as secretary of State will raise the morale of the State Department."

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., another committee member, said "Kissinger is highly able...I hope that he will devote his considerable talents fully to the pursuit of peace."

Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said the choice of Kissinger is a welcome one and he also approves of President Nixon's decision to continue him as national security affairs adviser.

Abroad, Arab radio broadcasts and editorials repeatedly noted that Kissinger is Jewish and implied this may make it more difficult for Arabs to deal with the United States on the Middle East crisis.

At a news conference Thursday, Kissinger said: "I will conduct the foreign policy of the United States regardless of religion and national heritage."

In Tel Aviv, the Jerusalem Post reported that Israeli officials believe the appointment means a strengthening in White House direction of foreign policy.

Press comment illustrated a widespread view abroad that Kissinger's nomination gave confirmation to present American foreign policy rather than indicating a change.

Agnew's successor named in indictment

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Dale Anderson, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's successor as the chief elected official of Baltimore County, was charged in a federal indictment Thursday with extorting $46,420 from engineers and architects doing business with the suburban county.

Anderson, as Baltimore County executive, is one of Maryland's most powerful Democrats. He is the sole defendant named in a 39-count indictment returned by the special grand jury probing alleged political corruption in the award of consulting contracts.

The jury has been investigating the affairs of Baltimore County since January, and is now expected to turn its attention to contract awards during Agnew's tenure as county executive from 1962 to 1966, as Maryland governor from 1967 to 1969 and since he became vice president.

Anderson, 56, was accused of conspiring with his former chief administrative officer, William E. Fornoff to extort 31 bribe payments totaling $46,420 between November 1968 and June 1972, from eight engineering and architectural firms performing construction, sanitation and road work under unbid contracts.

In addition, Anderson is accused of conspiring with Fornoff to violate the federal Hobbs Act and with seven counts of using interstate travel to promote extortion and bribery. Conviction on all charges could bring a maximum penalty of 675 years in jail and $390,000 in fines.

Anderson declined comment beyond repeating a recent statement professing innocence.

Fornoff, who served briefly in the same role under Agnew, resigned last June after pleading guilty to a tax charge stemming from his alleged role as a middleman between Anderson and the consultants.

Plot against Nixon cause for concern

Americans were no doubt shocked to learn that the Secret Service is investigating what is thought to have been a plot to assassinate President Richard Nixon in New Orleans on Monday.

The President was in the Louisiana city to address a convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. A planned motorcade through the heart of the city was cancelled after the Secret Service revealed to the President the alleged plot. Mr. Nixon refused to entirely drop the New Orleans trip, as he was advised to do.

Although some New Orleans police officials evidently downplay the seriousness of the plot, the Secret Service is investigating it fully. A spokesman called it the most serious threat ever to kill the President.

We side with the Secret Service, even to the point of overcaution. With the memory of that fateful day in Dallas still fresh, although nearly 10 years old, plus our more recent history of assassinations, both real and attempted, this is not a matter to be taken lightly.

It has been open season, so to speak, on Mr. Nixon for some months now as a result of the Watergate investigation. Given this nation's generous share of lunatic fringe types, it is entirely possible that one of them might interpret this literally.

The country has been through a great deal of late. If the unthinkable should ever happen again, it could be the final blow to the body politic as we have known it.

A conservative view

Art of the put-on foiled by credulity

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

SCRABBLE, Va. — We have not heard the last, I venture to say, of Nancy Maloley's burping cow. Sooner or later, both the cow and her creator will have to be enshrined in the Eritas Memorial Library, an institution established in 1923 in Colorado Springs to preserve the happier boasts of American letters.

Kilpatrick

The library's small staff devotes itself to discovering and recording those bubble-fantasies of our journalism that otherwise might perish in the noonday sun. Among its treasures are a full account of Ben Franklin's Polly Baker, H. L. Mencken's famous bathtub, Norman Cousins' golf-hating congressman, and a jug of Admiral W. J. Marshall's no-cal bourbon. The library's collection, while well known to scholars, deserves both a wider audience and a word of praise. The staff will not neglect Maloley's cow.

Ms. Maloley, for those who came in late, is editor of a publication of the Environmental Protection Agency, known as the EPAlog. A few weeks ago, she dutifully reported that agency scientists were speculating that "burping cows must rank as the number one source of air pollution in the United States." It was estimated that cows annually burp "approximately 50 million tons of hydrocarbons into the atmosphere."

"There presently exists no available technology for controlling these emissions," the editor continued. "However, the Department of Agriculture has suggested that perhaps a gas mask might do the trick if such masks can be designed to allow cows to eat grass while wearing them. It might even be possible to recover the natural gas generated by these cows, which could perhaps increase the supply by 10 per cent. Rest assured that EPA will take every measure to see that this significant source of hydrocarbon emissions is substantially reduced."

The immediate aftermath was that Rep. John B. Ashbrook (R-Ohio) warned his rural constituents to keep a close watch for EPA inspectors carrying emission control devices. He charged the agency with "going overboard in their attempt to purify the environment." Ms. Maloley, in a recent interview with Chalmers Roberts of the Washington Post, made the rueful comment of every boaster: "I never thought anyone would take it seriously."

She will learn. Franklin invented Polly Baker and her five illegitimate children also, and gained lasting fame from her eloquent defense of unfettered motherhood. To the day of his death, Mencken never was able to put down his inspired account of the first bathtub in the White House. Cousins, a man not easily staggered, was staggered by the impassioned denunciation visited by his readers upon Congressman A. F. Day, whose bill to abolish golf courses was reported in the Saturday Review of April 3, 1971. Admiral Marshall, having distilled his no-cal bourbon in an idle hour, spent months refusing franchises for his product.

At the risk of immodesty, I may add that one of my own editorials is included in the Eritas collection. This was a piece in the Richmond News Leader of May 14, 1958, under the caption of "Notes of an Ancient Game." It dealt with the history and current play of tiddlywinks in the British Isles. Here I reviewed the references to the noble game in Chaucer, Shakespeare and Marlowe. I described the chased ivory winks and silver cups to be seen in the great museums of Europe.

One tends to get swept away. I reported the precise dimensions of the ivory winks, the approved cup, and the ring, or "pale," around the cup. I covered the etymological aspects; the game, I said, had enriched our language with such phrases as beyond the pale, in the cups, tiddly, flipped, quick as a wink, and forty winks. The piece ran on and on — and it was taken seriously. Indeed it was. It was taken seriously by, among others, one sportswriter, two instructors in physical education, and the publisher's cousin.

"Doesn't everyone," asked Ms. Maloley, "have a sense of humor?" Alas, it is not so. The Eritas Memorial Library is itself an enduring reminder, in brick and stone and glass, that only a thin cover of skepticism conceals man's inner core of credulity. We want to believe. We want even to believe in burping cows, through as Dr. Roberts properly reminds us, cows have multiple stomachs and are incapable of burping. Dr. Roberts should know. While he is known primarily as a distinguished journalist, he was trained in veterinary science, received his degree in animal husbandry, and actually practiced for several years in the Yukon where his studies of the caribou first attracted attention.

Scholars wishing to make use of the Eritas collection should make arrangements with the curator. The library is open to the public from 10 to 5. Closed Mondays.

Today's thoughts

There is great gain in godliness with contentment; for we brought nothing into the world, and we cannot take anything out of the world; but if we have food and clothing, with these we shall be content. — 1 Timothy 6:6, 7, 8.

To one man, the world is barren, dull and superficial; to another rich, interesting and full of meaning. — Arthur Schopenhauer, German philosopher.

Computer is a real busybody

WASHINGTON — Somewhere in this great land of ours there is a computer stashed full of information on you. Whenever you want a bank loan, a credit card or a job, this computer will, in a matter of seconds, give some total stranger almost every detail of your life.

Buchwald

Unfortunately for most of us, the computer is unable to discriminate between fact and malicious gossip, and once the information is fed into it, it stays there forever.

The other day I was considering going into a car pool with three other men, Hicks, Kroll and Anderson. I have known these men casually for years, but when you join a car pool you really want to know what they're like.

So I asked a friend of mine in the retail credit business if I could use his computer for a few hours.

He agreed, and I went down there and typed out: WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT HICKS, AL, WHO LIVES AT 43 LOVER'S LEAP TERRACE?

The computer started chattering: HICKS, AL, BORN OCT. 23, 1925, BOTTLE-FED, BED-WETTER UNTIL 7 YEARS OLD.

I typed back: FORGET ABOUT CHILDHOOD AND GIVE ME SOME OTHER FACTS.

The computer replied: HICKS HAS A DOMINEERING WIFE WHO THE WHOLE WORLD THINKS IS SWEET AS MAPLE SYRUP. WHENEVER SHE GETS MAD AT HIM HE STARTS BITING HIS NAILS.

I typed back: I'M NOT INTERESTED IN THAT. WHAT'S THE CONDITION OF HIS CAR?

The computer paused for a few seconds and then tapped out: HICKS OWNS 1957 BUICK CONVERTIBLE FOR WHICH HE IS STILL PAYING $80 A MONTH. IT HAS BEEN IN THE GARAGE 33 TIMES AND HAS COST HIM $1,500 IN REPAIRS. TWO OF THE SPRINGS IN THE BACK SEAT ARE BROKEN AND HE NEEDS NEW SNOW TIRES. HE HAS THE CAR WASHED ONCE A MONTH.

It added: HICKS NEVER CHEATS ON HIS WIFE, THOUGH HE THINKS ABOUT IT A LOT.

THAT'S ENOUGH, I told the computer. NOW GIVE ME A RUNDOWN ON KROLL, H. G., WHO LIVES AT 1 LION'S DEN CIRCLE.

The tapes in the computer started turning furiously and finally stopped. The teletype began to chatter KROLL, H. G., HAD STRONG MOTHER WHO DRESSED HIM IN SILK SAILOR SUITS UNTIL HE WAS 13 YEARS OLD.

GET ON WITH IT, I typed impatiently.

HE OWNS 1970 FOUR-DOOR MERCURY SEDAN WHICH HAS SPECIAL SILK SEAT COVERS. LIKES TO DRESS UP IN HIS WIFE'S CLOTHES WHEN CHILDREN ARE AT CAMP.

THAT'S ENOUGH, I typed angrily. WHAT ABOUT ANDERSON, E. L., 198 DOVER CLIFFS?

ANDERSON IS HAVING A BIG THING WITH A LADY COSMETICS BUYER FROM LORD & TAYLOR.

WHAT ABOUT HIS CAR? I demanded.

THEY DON'T USE HIS CAR. THEY USE HERS.

I DIDN'T MEAN THAT. IS HIS AUTOMOBILE SAFE FOR OUR CAR POOL?

IT IS NOW. BUT IF MRS. ANDERSON EVER FINDS OUT ABOUT THE LADY BUYER...

THANK YOU VERY MUCH, I typed. YOU'VE BEEN MOST HELPFUL.

DON'T MENTION IT. OH, BY THE WAY, WHEN ARE YOU GOING TO STOP BEATING YOUR WIFE?

Indian militants put in bad light

By JACK ANDERSON and
LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — To put the Indians who rampaged through the Bureau of Indian Affairs in the worst possible light, the government grossly overstated the damage they had done. It also grossly understated the support of their goals among other Indians.

When the militant Trail of Broken Treaties caravan vacated the building last November, the government announced that only the burning of Washington by the British in 1814 and the San Francisco earthquake caused greater damage.

Fearful that the militants' ideas would be adopted by young Indians all over America, the government paid to fly Indians to Washington to join it in denouncing the BIA occupiers as urban upstarts who had no support among reservation tribes.

We have now obtained an in-depth study by the House Appropriations Committee marked "Not for Release Until Authorized by Committee." In calm language, it firmly disputes many of the Nixon administration's assertions.

The document reports that instead of the $2.28 million damage estimated by the administration, the actual total is closer to $1.5 million. Both figures include lost wages and similar costs.

As to charges that the occupiers were merely rabble-rousing city malcontents without real reservation membership, the House staff study found just the opposite was true. Based on the best available figures, "over 50 per cent of the Trail of Broken Treaties participants were reservation Indians." When rural and college Indians temporarily away from reservations were included, the figure was "close to... 70 per cent."

Like most Americans, many Indians saw the BIA take over as "an exercise in futility" and they viewed the destruction with "scorn." But Indians also confided to the House probers that the militants' "Twenty Points... embodied long-held Indian grievances and established a position they would support."

All but forgotten in the hysteria of the BIA coup, the Twenty Points were demands for enforcement of present treaties, home rule by Indians on Indian lands, return of much Indian land and federal social help.

In South Dakota, for instance, the Indians "account for merely one-twelfth of the population (but) one-half of the girls committed to reform schools and one-third of the male inmates at the state prison," said the report.

The House investigators spent more than three months trudging through six states to interview Indians of all persuasions and found generally they "believe they have been making greater strides than ever before... through legitimate channels by authorized leadership."

They found that many Indians denounced the American Indian Movement which led the BIA takeover. But "among young people... a new sense of pride in being Indian has created a fertile field (for) AIM."

The House probers vigorously attacked "the dual standards of certain law enforcement agencies in their treatment of Indians, ranging from neglect to harassment, depending on whether Indians are the victims or perpetrators of the crime."

The investigation also dealt courageously with what pro-Indian whites only whisper about and most Indians prefer to forget: the corruption and inefficiency among tribal councilmen who are denounced by young Indians as "Uncle Tomahawks."

Because councilmen get $50 a day and per diem expenses while their councils are in session, "the job has become highly desirable and has given rise to excesses in political machinations..."

Many councilmen "are unqualified for leadership, suffer inadequacies because of personal problems, lack the business acumen necessary... and generally neglect the responsibilities..."

But the federal government drains away many of the best potential leaders to work for the Bureau of Indian Affairs, thus often leaving the tribes leaderless. "Tribes are attempting to function in the 1970s with outmoded government structures designed in 1934," the document concludes.

FOOTNOTE: One of the foremost Indians held up by conservative leaders is the part-Cherokee former board chairman of Phillips Petroleum, W. W. Keeler. Keeler was revealed a few days ago as making an illegal $100,000 gift of Phillips corporate funds to the Nixon campaign.

NAVY BLUES: Shortly before Navy Secretary John Chafee departed, he decreed that sailors could wear handsome jacket-type uniforms instead of the traditional whites and blues.

But someone failed to take into account the fact that the blues and whites can be rolled compactly, while the new uniforms must be hung in lockers. Now, the Navy must buy some 300,000 larger lockers and find places to put them in the already short-spaced ships.

To make matters worse, some fleet admirals got tired of waiting for Navy contract officers to provide the lockers and began buying them with funds under their own control — at up to $50 too much per locker.

A safety play is a play designed to guard against some form of misfortune. Some safety plays aren't guaranteed to work. Others risk an important overtrick, but all are designed to increase declarer's chance of bringing home the bacon. South ruffs the second spade and sees that he is going to make his five-diamond contract provided he doesn't lose more than one trump trick. He also sees that he has no way to avoid the loss of at least one. He leads a diamond toward dummy. West plays the 10 and dummy's king wins. He leads back the deuce of diamonds. If East plays the queen or jack South will win with his ace; lead the nine and be sure of his contract. But East doesn't play the jack. He simply drops the seven-spot on the table. This is the best that East can do and it will work if South goes up with his ace, but South has no reason to do this. The play of the nine-spot guarantees the contract at no risk whatsoever and as such is a perfect safety play.

Woman psychologist named 'Miss Multimedia'

She's been called "Miss Multimedia" by VARIETY, and rightly so. There is no current form of media in which the diminutive psychologist has not appeared; nor are there many human activities that escape her interest.

Her most recent effort is a daily half-hour talk-variety series for television called "Trevira Presents: Living Easy with Dr. Joyce Brothers," produced for syndication.

Also appearing on seven NBC radio network programs weekly, Dr. Brothers is heard daily on "Emphasis: Mind over Matter," and twice each weekend on NBC's Monitor. Her daily radio show on WMCA radio, "Call Dr. Brothers," most particularly that on Jan. 4, 1971, won her the New York Deadline Club of Sigma Delta Chi award for her on-the-air conversations with a would-be suicide.

In addition to her daily column, syndicated in hundreds of newspapers, Dr. Brothers is a contributing editor to GOOD HOUSEKEEPING magazine where her column, "On Being a Woman" has been appearing since 1963.

A frequent guest on late night TV talk shows, Dr. Brothers also appears monthly on the "Captain Kangaroo" TV series discussing children's problems of growing up.

Her first two books, "Ten Days to a Successful Memory" and "Woman" have been translated into 26 languages. She has completed another, "The Brothers' System for Liberated Love and Marriage," published by Peter Wyden Inc.

Dr. Brothers has been named one of the 10 most influential American women, and one of the 10 most admired women by college students.

She has written numerous articles on the psychology of sports and once served as co-host of a sports show on radio. She has also been a pilot, a speed boat racer, surfer, bicyclist and continues to swim often.

Dr. Brothers is married to Dr.

Milton Brothers, an internist specializing in metabolic diseases. Her daughter Lisa attends Princeton University.

She holds a degree in home economics from Cornell University, and masters and doctoral degrees in psychology from Columbia University.

TV's Bilko

I say the Sergeant Bilko series started under a different title. My husband says I'm wrong. — Mrs. David Simmons, New Glarus, Wisc.

You're right. The TV series made its debut in 1955 under the title "You'll Never Get Rich." It featured Phil Silvers as Sergeant Ernest G. Bilko, a fast-talking army sergeant with a million get-rich-quick schemes. His sidekicks were Paul Ford as Colonel Hall and Allan Melvin and Harvey Lembeck as members of his platoon.
